If War Vanished. Music From the Sky Again: Don't Sell Short. Pain and Suffering.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

THAT PACT outlawing war is signed, and for the present, nations seem to take it seriously.

Suppose the improbable SHOULD happen, and all nations suddenly abandon war. What would happen?

Earth's population has been regulated by WAR, DISEASE, FAMINE.

Machinery and better government have practically eliminated famine.

Science has almost eliminated the plagues that killed wholesale. No more "Black Death." With war gone, what would prevent growth of population greater than the earth could sustain.

Divine Wisdom, ruling the earth, is probably able to solve that problem as it has taken care of others, including the most difficult, how to keep populations GROWING in spite of war, plague and famine.

Clerks, leaning out of windows, looked upward, taxicab drivers leaned out, looked up, hundreds of thousands in New York City yesterday got their first good, long look at the sky in some time.

An airplane radio up in the clouds was broadcasting music. And a voice from the sky having attracted attention, said at decent intervals: "There is not a cough in a carload."

What would be said of that by Ruskin, who hated railroads because they spoiled the countryside?

We are not compelled to ride in railroad trains, but there is no escape from that statement about the carload of coughs.

Longfellow's prophecy, "the night shall be filled with music," is realized with "Night" changed to day.

Thirty-two American railroads report their July earnings showing an increase of 12.7 per cent on operating income. If railroads are not making money, the Interstate Commerce Commission fixes it so that they CAN make money. Farmers lack that advantage.

With railroad and other stocks increasing their earnings, even usury promoted by the Federal Reserve powers, establishing an interest rate of 8 per cent, is unable to discourage buyers.

United States Steel yesterday went to a new high record, selling 119,800 shares, and other stocks kept soaring with it.

Once more, Don't sell this country short. "It hath not yet been shown what we shall be," on the ticker and elsewhere.

The Rev. Dr. Auer, who teaches philosophy at Tufts College, says men should not seek to AVOID pain and suffering, but to UNDERSTAND both.

That is better than the old theory that God actually wanted men to suffer.

When anaesthetics were first used, the clergy of Britain denounced them as interfering with God's wishes.

God wishes us to suffer when we have our legs cut off, and men must not interfere with His plans by using chloroform, thus cheating the Lord, said the preachers.

An ingenious doctor answered, to the confusion of clergymen, quoting the Book of Genesis, asserting that the Lord was the one to use anaesthetics when he caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam" before removing one of Adam's ribs to make Eve.

Men should understand pain and suffering, of course, as the reverend philosopher, Auer, says. But they should also concentrate on eliminating both, by scientific means, and especially by abolishing poverty.

The best thing is Herbert Hoover's speech of acceptance, the best thing said by any presidential candidate since Lincoln, was his statement expressing the hope that by giving every man a job, well paid, poverty may be made to disappear.

100 PLANES HUNT FOR 2 FLIERS

Curtiss Field, N. Y., Aug. 29 (AP)—The air search for the two missing fliers—M. M. Merrill and E. M. Ronne—reported since they left Buffalo for this field Monday afternoon, got under way at 7:15 this morning.

Led by the veteran "Casey" Jones, president of the Curtiss flying service and associate of Merrill, 10 planes, commercial and army, took off from Curtiss and Mitchel fields, and in formation started their search of the territory between here and Ithaca, N. Y.

Other fliers from Buffalo and northern New York cities will search between that city and Ithaca.

By late afternoon almost a hundred planes were expected to have joined in the greatest search ever undertaken in this country for missing fliers.

MONK NETS FIRST VICTIM

Attorney Samuel Levy of Roxbury, with offices in Milk st., who was arrested in Insurance Commissioner Monk's drive in the automobile insurance rate controversy. Monk is known to have several other arrests in contemplation and will go before the grand jury. Levy is accused by two clients. He declined comment.

FIRST ARREST IN AUTO INSURANCE; MONK TO GO BEFORE GRAND JURY

The first arrest in the automobile insurance investigation was made today when police took into custody Attorney Samuel Levy of Fayston st., Roxbury.

Levy is charged with larcenies from two clients who had claims against insurance companies.

Following the arrest police de- clared Insurance Commissioner Wesley E. Monk has several cases of this nature under investigation. It was generally supposed that his "black list" contained only cases of defrauding insurance companies by false claims.

The Boston authorities also revealed that Monk has laid plans to go before a Suffolk County Grand Jury next month, with evidence against a score of Hub lawyers.

MONK WON'T QUIT.

Commissioner Monk today emphatically denied a report that he would resign because of pressure from high State officials to rescind the contemplated huge boost in auto insurance rates.

Atty. Levy, who was taken to police headquarters and fingerprinted and questioned by Chief Inspector Ainslie C. Armstrong, is charged with larceny of $1000 from Thomas A. Ryan of Chambers st., West End, and $8a from William J. Benson of Huntington ave.

Levy was arrested in Boylston st. by Traffic Officer Cote and Special Officers Robert Lynch and John Fresnahan, Benson accompanying the policemen and pointing out the attorney.

HELD IN $3000 BAIL.

After refusing to make any statements to Inspector Armstrong, Levy was arraigned before Judge Bennett in municipal court, where he pleaded not guilty and was released under bail of $3000 for a hearing September 12.

He is said to have been graduated from law school with honors at the age of 20, having to wait a year before admission to the bar because of his youth. He has been practic-

87 AND MAYBE HIGHER, BUT COOLER TONIGHT

A combination of moderately high temperature and excessive humidity sent to the beaches today those fortunate Bostonians who did not find it necessary to keep their noses to the grindstone.

The official mercury reached 87 at noon and the weatherman stepped out of his official capacity to hazard the opinion it might reach 90.

A 92 on August 29, 1880, was the maximum reading for this date. The second hottest was 91 in 1922.

Today's early humidity was 93 and it changed little during the morning and early afternoon.

Tonight, however, will be cooler, the weatherman predicted and tomorrow will be fair.

An area of cool fair weather now almost general along the Atlantic seaboard is expected to be followed by a widely-ranged disturbance, bearing many thunder showers, which is descending the east slope of the Rocky Mountains. In other words the week-end may be stormy.

The forecast: Fair tonight and Thursday, slightly cooler tonight; moderate westerly winds.

BURNED IN OIL BLAST

One man was badly burned and half a dozen others narrowly escaped death or injury in an explosion at the Everett plant of the Beacon Oil Company, early today.

Joseph Fraser, 34, a fireman residing at 65 Monument st., Charlestown was the victim of the accident. The explosion was caused by a leaking tube near the dome of a high pressure oil still.

Flames leaped 100 feet in the air, following the explosion. Fraser, caught in the blast, was burned about the face and hands, and his clothing was set on fire. Other workmen dragged him to a place of safety and beat out the fire. After first aid treatment he was rushed to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

The flames which followed the explosion could be seen miles distant. A general fire alarm brought the Everett firemen to the scene, but the fire had been extinguished when the firemen arrived. The property damage was slight.

REVERE GIRL FIFTH IN MARATHON SWIM

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 29 (AP)—Swimming a relentless crawl stroke that shot her through the water at a startling speed, Miss Ethel Herlihy of New York, led the field of 52 in the 10-mile women's marathon at the end of the first 2½ miles of the ten-mile grind through the waters of Lake Toronto today.

A hundred yards behind, Olive Gatterdam, of Seattle, Wash., guarded second place with a lead of 100 yards over Ruth Tower, of Denver. Miss Herlihy swam at a rate of 42 strokes a minute. Her time for the 2½ miles was one hour 11 minutes and 34½ seconds.

Gertrude Ederle of New York, first woman to conquer the English channel, and coupled with Miss Herlihy as favorite to win the first prize of $10,000, was in fourth place, 50 yards behind.

EASTERN LINES SHIFT MEN, BUT DENY FRAUD

While officials of the Eastern Steamship Co. today continued their denials of a $40,000 irregularity in the sale of tickets, they did admit that there has been a number of shifts in the personnel of the various ticket offices the company maintains.

Robert Stone, a director of the company, insisted that there was no known shortage in the receipts of ticket sales. He did say, however, that an investigation of the ticket sale had been undertaken by high officials of the company.

The story of the shortage in the steamship company's receipts spread when an employe of the company who had been discharged was suddenly returned to his post. The story that gained currency was that this employe regained his position by threatening to tell all he knew of irregularities in the ticket department.

Mr. Stone, who with his sister, the wife of "Tackle" Hardwick, former Harvard football star are the principal stockholders in the company, declared that the only reason the dismissed employe was returned to his post was because an investigation of his record disclosed that he had spent years in the company's employ and was entitled, on this account, to more consideration than was shown him by his immediate superior.

WOMEN IN RECORD RUSH TO REGISTER AS VOTERS

City Hall Annex was a scene of confusion today as throngs of perspiring men and women filled the corridors on the first floor in a last-minute rush to register for the September 18 primary.

According to election officials, much of the rush was due to the erroneous belief that there would be no further opportunity to register before the November election, when, as a matter of fact, registration will be resumed September 19.

It was the biggest drive with which the election department has had to contend, long lines of men and women waiting in the heat for the force of 100 clerks to take care of them. The crowd was about equally divided between both sexes.

The difficulties of the clerks were aded to by the uncertainty in the minds of many of the citizens as to which ward they lived in. Elec-

VICTIMS WILL LOSE ALL IN FARM LOAN FRAUDS

Massachusetts and New England victims of the farm loan frauds exposed by Government agents will lose every cent of their investment, Postoffice Inspector E. R. Cochran of Kansas City declared today as the federal grand jury began a probe of the New England end.

Inspector Cochran revealed, as the probe got under way, that President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard is a loser in the sum of $70,000.

"It was the high type of men such as President Lowell that this gang solicited," said the postoffice inspector, "and many distinguished men of New England are among the losers."

According to Cochran, there undoubtedly will be at least six indictments returned by the federal grand jury in Federal Court.

Locally State street brokers and financiers are declared to have been hard hit and there were a few ing nine years and formerly had a downtown office.

Ryan's claim against a Baltimore Insurance company was based on death of his son in an auto accident a year and a half ago.

According to police, Ryan declares he made an agreement and signed what he thought to be an agreement that he was willing to settle for $4000.

RELEASE IS SIGNED.

He learned a year later, police say, that the case had been settled with the insurance company for $1500. He went to Levy, it is alleged, and asked him about it and received the reply, "It's not taken care of yet, you'll hear from me when it is."

Investigating further, Ryan is said to have been informed by the insurance officials that he had settled for $1500 and that they had his release for that amount.

"If I signed a release for $1500. It was not put up to me that way and I don't remember signing any such paper," Ryan is declared to have stated in making his complaint.

The case in which Benson is the complainant is somewhat similar and is based on an accident in which he suffered injury to an eye.

Levy was arrested by Special Officers Robert Lynch and John Bresnahan of Milk st. division and Traffic Officer Cote. He refused to make any statement when questioned by Chief Inspector Armstrong.

WARNER ACTION DELAYED.

Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner, who is in charge of the investigation of possible criminal acts by attorneys and doctors in making fictitious or exaggerated claims for clients, said he has not proceeded far because the data other persons are to furnish had not been received.

He has received all data in possession of the registrar of motor vehicles, Capt. George A. Parker, but none from Insurance Commissioner Monk and others, he explained.

"I haven't the slightest intention of resigning," said Insurance Commissioner Monk, when asked about the report which had him ready to quit under fire. "I am not in the habit of running away from the firing line.

He indicated that if he leaves office at the present time it will be because he is discharged, not because he is unwilling to "stand by his guns."

ALLEN SUGGESTS REMEDY.

Asked to comment on the letter from Lieut.-Gov. Frank G. Allen, who calls the rate raise unjustified and demands that the present schedules be kept as they are, the insurance department head said he had only just received it in the mail and had not had time to study it.

In his letter, Lieut.-Gov. Allen said the increase would be "unwise and unjustified." As a remedy he suggested:

"If the insurance companies feel that the old rate schedules will not be adequate for 1929, the law specifically provides a way for them to seek relief in an appeal to the supreme judicial court. I would rush-rope about a month ago

The primary registration closes at 10 o'clock tonight, and registration for the election will start Sept. 19. Five of 11 workers under the buildings were taken out alive, two of them being unhurt. They did not know the fate of their companions, pinned under the floor rafters.

The excavation is thought to have caused the buildings to give way.

Curtiss Field, N. M. Merrill and E. M. Ronne disappeared between here and Buffalo.

The reward was offered only to ground searchers, on the theory that fliers would need no spur in their search and would not accept any reward for rescue work done for the sake of a fellow pilot.

Ten new cases of infantile paralysis reported today to the State department of health jumped the July and August totals for the State up to 176. In today's list Boston reported three cases, Newton two.

Two hundred pickets, mostly girls, patrolled in front of Greater Boston garment shops today as the strike of approximately 500 employes entered its second day.

Efforts of union leaders were concentrated on getting 500 more workers to quit their benches and this organization drive will continue until Friday, it was announced, before any attempt at negotiation is made.

Prior to today's meeting of the strikers their union officials admitted their prime object in the strike is to swell the ranks of the members permanently and cement the organization.

The pickets, in small groups, were on duty at the opening hour today and were to appear again at closing time.

108 PLANES IN SKY HUNT FOR LOST FLIERS

there Monday at 4 p. m. in Charles A. Lindbergh's Curtiss Falcon for Curtiss Field. The plane had been left there for repairs and was being ferried to the Long Island field for the colonel's convenience.

A plane that might have been the Falcon was reported over Mackenzieville and over Ithaca a short time later. Since then nothing has been heard of the two men. It was feared they were forced down in some remote spot and either killed or so critically injured that they were unable to seek aid or report their accident.

The entire route from here to Ithaca has been blocked off into squares with each plane assigned a definite territory to cover.

The Sabelli plane, the Roma, being groomed for a transatlantic flight also joined the search, and was assigned Long Island as its territory. Roger Q. Williams, who will be co-pilot on the ocean flight, was at the stick of the big seaquiplane.

Each plane in the hunt carried two observers, one to watch the terrain on each side.

The search was started at Buffalo yesterday by Lieut. Nathaniel E. Duffy, but after several hours search he was forced down by the gathering darkness at Towanda, Pa., without having found a clue to the fliers. Low visibility barred a search from this end of the route.

Appeals were sent out to all available fliers to join the search and all Curtiss Field pilots were called in from reserve duty.

At 7:15 today, Jones sent his plane roaring down the the field and was followed at one-minute intervals by six others. The first planes off the ground circled the field waiting for the others and for three army ships from Mitchel Field. The nine planes then swept rapidly into the north.

Abandon Hunt for Plane in Pennsylvania

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 29 (AP)—Search for the airplane reported to have crashed in the mountains at Clark's Ferry, near here, was abandoned today by Col. Wm. M. Fravel, commandant of the United States army aviation depot at Middletown, and State police. Directors of the search said they believed the report of the plane crash was erroneous.

With aid of a searchlight on a fire truck a party of 15 men scoured the mountainside last night without finding a trace of a plane or damaged trees to indicate a plane had struck them.

Fear that the plane was believed to be the missing ship flown by M. M. Merrell and E. M. Ronne from Buffalo to New York city.

Connecticut Clue in Plane Hunt Proves to Be False

MISSING GIRL FOUND AT REVERE BEACH

SHE'S TARGET FOR BULLET THAT JUST MISSES

"STRONG MAN" DAD OF EUGENIC BABY

ONLY BRUISED IN HIS PLUNGE OUT SECOND STORY

CHELSEA MISS SLEPT UNDER BUILDINGS

Telling a story of sleeping under porches, in shacks of amusement concessions and on the beach itself, Gertrude Spellman, 13, of Crescent ave., Chelsea, was found by a Revere police inspector early today after having been missing from home since last Thursday.

As a result of the girl's narrative, police today sought out a number of employes of a Revere Beach amusement place for questioning.

The girl, when found by police today, was asleep on the steps leading into a merry-go-round building. She was taken to police headquarters by Inspector John Starkey, who had gone to the building on a telephone "tip."

Gertrude left home Thursday night with friends for an evening at Revere Beach. When she did not return the police were notified and a hunt had been conducted since.

The girl said that it became so late Thursday night that she was afraid to go home—and then she was afraid to go home because of staying out all night.

A number of men bought her meals, she told police, and at night she avoided policemen and went beneath porches or slept anywhere that offered.

It buried itself in the wall. Police are seeking a boy with a target mania.

BARES SECRET OF RICH MRS. BURNHAM

New York, Aug. 29 (INS)—Capt. Marc Michallovitch Medvedeff, 36, ex former officer in the Russian navy and a former circus strong man, admitted today that he is the father of the famous "eugenic baby" born to Mrs. Grace Mailhouse Burnham in the Lying-In Hospital on January 10 last.

Identity of the father of the baby, a girl, which Mrs. Burnham named Vera, meaning "truth," had been carefully concealed ever since the circumstances surrounding the birth of the baby evoked considerable publicity at the time.

WIDOW SILENT

Mrs. Burnham, a widow, never issued a statement concerning the case. The birth records bore the name of Karl Graham, lawyer, of 25 Riverside drive. No one could be found who knew such a man as Graham. It was believed that the "Graham" was compounded of the first and last syllables of "Grace Burnham." Mrs. Burnham had been a widow three years. She is a daughter of Dr. Max Mailhouse, a wealthy and prominent physician of New Haven, Ct. Her husband was Lee Burnham of Kentucky, a wealthy distiller.

TO DIVORCE WIFE.

Capt. Medvedeff, an actor, a wrestler, a former strong man in a circus and a physical culturist, says he is of good family. He made his admission of being the father of the "eugenic baby" coincident with the filing of divorce proceedings brought against his wife, Sifera Kanrovitch Medvedeff.

It was revealed that testimony might be introduced in the case which involve the male parentage of the baby born to Mrs. Burnham.

To a reporter of the New Yorz Evening Journal, Medvedeff made the following statement:

"I am the father of the child (the eugenic baby). I am willing to stand before Mrs. Burnham and in the presence of witnesses confront her with the indisputable facts and details which she cannot deny. I am willing to submit to a blood test —to have my blood and that of the child analyzed.

READY FOR BLOOD TEST

"I will do anything that will tend to dispel any doubt concerning the matter. I must reveal the truth for my own protection. I am sure that the Burnham child will not be ashamed of her father. I come from a good family in Russia and here in New York I have relatives who stand high in their own professions and vocations.

"I have considered the criticism that may be directed at me for revealing these facts. However, I stand adamant. The truth can in no way be criticized. Those that seek to stand the truth are themselves hypocrites. I want none of them as friends. Mrs. Burnham has named the child Vera, from the Latin 'Veritas,' meaning truth. Can I say more?"

WAS HIRED AS MODEL

Medvedeff signed a statement saying he had been engaged by Mrs. Burnham as a model. He had been posing for a sculptress, the wife of a socially prominent New Yorker. In March, 1927, this woman recommended him to another woman whose home was in West Fifty-Ninth st. and who a "pupil" who wanted a model.

He called one evening and found the "pupil" in the apartment. She gave him only the name of Annie.

CALLS FOR AUTO BUT COP HAS HIM STAY

Carl Pearson of Lynn paid a hurried call to Revere police headquarters today before going to work in a Lynn shoe factory, but he could have been more leisurely because the police pressed on him an invitation to stay.

"I've only got a few minutes, but I came to get back my car," said Pearson breathlessly. "It's a such and-such car."

"A such-and-such car?" queried Officer Daniel J. Sullivan. "And you've only got a few minutes?"

Right!" responded Pearson.

"Wrong," corrected Officer Sullivan. "You've got plenty of time."

And so a charge of being suspicious person was lodged against Pearson while he was explaining that he had lent his car to a friend Sunday, and had heard the Revere police had it.

According to the police the car raced away after Officer Sullivan himself had arrested two alleged burglars in the rear of the Oriole Building.

Harold Lovell of Lynn and Lawrence Greenleaf of Nahant were arrested at gun point. Since Lovell's arrest his own house has been burgled.

'BOSSY' AGREES IN COURT TO OBEY LAW

Another court appearance was made today by "Bossy" Gillis, Newburyport mayor, when he agreed before Judge Qua in equity motion session of Superior Court, that he would sell no more gasoline or oil at his disputed gas station in Newburyport, until he obtained necessary permits.

"Bossy" appeared to answer injunction proceedings brought by Victor A. Craig and L. Louise Craig, who live at 110 High st., opposite the new station.

He was a mute "Bossy" in court, his counsel, City Solicitor T. Frank Kelleher of Newburyport, acting as mouthpiece.

There was considerable conferring between Gillis and his counsel before court and the red-headed Mayor did much gesticulating. Finally, however, the argument appeared to die and "Bossy" thenceforth talked in ordinary conversational tones.

After making his promise in court, "Bossy" met Jim Maloney, the heavyweight boxer, in the courthouse corridors and posed with him for a picture.

Chaplin's Mother Dies "Victim of War Raids"

Glendale, Cal., Aug. 29—Mrs. Hannah Chaplin, mother of Charles and Syd Chaplin, film comedians, died at a hospital here. She had been ill more than a month.

Charles was at the bedside, having expected the end throughout the night.

Mrs. Chaplin was broken by the ravages of World War, ten years ago, after her brilliance had won her popularity on the English stage. Her husband, Charles Spencer Chaplin, Sr., who died 30 years ago, had preceded her as a well known English actor.

With the war and the thought of terrifying raids of German Zeppelins on London, the horror is said to have wrecked her mind, and seven years ago physicians said only a protracted sea trip could save her.

It was then that her two sons brought her to America. Immigration authorities at first refused her admittance because of her health but this objection was finally removed.

Charles Chaplin was in a state of collapse today over her death.

'PEACHES' MAY BE BARRED IN WALTHAM

An attmpt will be made to prevent appearance of "Peaches" Browning at the Embassy Theater, Waltham, it was learned today.

Prof. Royal M. Frye, president of the Waltham Federation of Churches, declared he would make an immediate attempt to call together his organization, but feared there would not be time. The professor, who is a member of the faculty of M. I. T. said he had no knowledge of the scheduled appearance of "Peaches" until informed by newspapermen.

Asked if he approved or disapproved the young woman's appearance on a local stage, Prof. Frye rupled there was no reason why he should approve, but he would not voice his disapproval without the authority of his organization. Civic authorities have prevented the appearance of "Peaches" heretofore in other Massachusetts cities.

C. A. Upchurch, State Anti-Saloon League superintendent. J. S. Riffin, local Smith man, challenged Straton to turn his anti-Smith speech here next Monday night into a debate with Hardwick, but Upchurch, before receiving a reply from Straton, declined the challenge.

THOUSANDS IN TEARS AT MRS. COHAN RITES

New York, Aug. 29 (INS)—Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Helen Frances Cohan, the beloved "Mrs. Jerry," the mother of George M. Cohan.

She was buried from the church of the Blessed Sacrament, in Seventy-First st., just off the Broadway block which her life had centered for more than half a century until she retired to her home in Monroe, N. Y., where she died last Sunday. She was seventy-four.

There were more than 2000 persons at her funeral, among them white-haired men and women who were the stars celebrities of thirty and forty years ago and whose names are now almost forgotten.

Every theatrical producer, every theater, every stage organization and those of its allied crafts and arts sent flowers—so many of them that a large room in the church was filled and some had to be refused and remained in cars outside to be taken to the grave in Woodlawn cemetery.

A seven high mass of requiem was celebrated by the Rev. William J. Walsh, S. J., assisted by the Rev. Walter F. Gilmore, both of Monroe.

Men and women wept openly as the casket was borne into the church just as George M. Cohan, his wife and daughter arrived in an automobile. They, too, were crying. Floral blanket of yellow roses and orchids, sent by the Friars' Club, covered the casket.

The death of Mrs. Cohan left her son as the last of the "Four Cohans," she being buried beside the graves of her husband, Jerry, and their daughter, Josephine.

State employes and employes of municipalities that accept the act would be paid their regular salaries while serving in the regular training period of the officer's reserve corps of the army and navy, under the provisions of a bill filed today at the State House by Rep. Frank W. Osborne of Lynn.

COUNSEL HALTS EXTRADITION OF FRANK GUSTIN

Judge Crosby of Supreme Court today heard and took under advisement a petition for a writ of habeas corpus to cause the release from Charles st. jail of Frank Waldace, alias Gustin, wanted in Detroit for alleged murder of a policeman.

The action brought before the Supreme Court by Wallace's counsel, effectively has blocked his extradition to Detroit since Gov. Fuller signed the papers rendering him to Michigan justice. Several local charges against Wallace were not pressed in order to clear the way for his removal to Detroit.

Petitions for writs of habeas corpus to produce Wallace and John J. Moriarty, a prisoner on Deer Island, before the court were denied by Judge Crosby. Moriarty was wanted as an alibi witness.

The judge also refused to hear the testimony of eight witnesses, who, Wallace's counsel claimed, would place him in Boston at the time of the Detroit crime.

Defense Attorney John W. Corcoran told the court he was trying to determine whether Governor Fuller had not signed the extradition papers in New Hampshire, but Asst. Atty.-Gen. F. D. Bacigalupo announced he had learned the papers were signed at the State House.

Questions of facts allowed by the state in the act of extradition were not admissable before the court after extradition papers were signed, Judge Crosby ruled.

Corcoran said he would take exceptions to the full bench, and asked that Judge Crosby report the case to that body.

POISON FUMES CLOSE STORE

Leakage of cyanide of potassium, a deadly poison, into a Lynn food and soft drink store, caused padlocking of the store today because of danger to customers, according to the police.

Members of the firm of Wilson & Twist, owners of the store, voluntarily reported the leak which, they are said to have informed police, came through the ceiling from a factory on an upper floor.

The company faced the loss of $2000 in stock, according to Health Commissioner William V. Hopkins, who, in ordering the placed closed, praised the storekeepers highly for their prompt action.

U. S. INVITES ALL SAVE RUSSIA TO SIGN PACT

Washington, Aug. 29 (AP)—In keeping with the spirit of the negotiations which resulted in signing the anti-war treaty, invitations have been placed by American diplomatic representatives before 44 countries other than those which have signed. Those invited include every sovereignty of consequence, except Russia, which has been bidden by France to join.

The American invitation said:

"The United States has been anxious from the beginning that no state should feel deprived of an opportunity to participate promptly in the new treaty and thus not put itself formally and solemnly with this new manifestation of the popular demand for world peace, but also avail itself of the identical benefits enjoyed by the original signatories.

"Accordingly in the draft treaty proposed by it, the United States made specific provision for participation in the treaty by any and every power desiring to identify itself therewith, and this same provision is found in the definitive instrument signed in Paris."

SLAVS QUICKLY SIGN.

Declaring that several expressions of intention to sign have already reached Washington, the invitation said that "this convincing evidence of the world-wide interest and sympathy which the new treaty has evoked is most gratifying to all governments concerned."

While invitations were being delivered, several countries extended themselves to be among the first to add approval after that of the powers.

Jugoslavia was first to follow the original 15, when Foreign Minister Marinkovitch signed the pact 15 minutes after receiving the official invitation.

CUBA SIGNS TODAY.

From Havana came word that Cuba intends to be the first Latin-American country to sign. The formal ceremony of adherence was set for today.

The Bolivian legation here announced Bolivia was one of the nations which had notified Secretary Kellogg of its intention to adhere to the pact. At Sofia, Premier Liapcheff stated Bulgaria would sign.

"We rejoice sincerely," he said, "at each step made by the United States which brings that country closer to Europe. We appreciate, above all, this new manifestation of this approach."

Favorable replies are expected from Norway and Argentina.

Russia Scorns League's Armament Proposals

Geneva, Aug. 29 (AP)—Russia has refused to collaborate with efforts of the League of Nations to obtain control of the manufacture of arms.

Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet vice-commissar for foreign affairs, telegraphed Sir Eric Drummand, segretary of the league, that the league "has done nothing toward real disarmament."

Meanwhile, the United States and Canada are co-operating in an effort to bring about the widest kind of publicity concerning manufacture of armaments. Their representatives, Ambassador Hugh Wilson for the United States and Dr. W. A. Riddell for Canada, voiced disapproval of a draft project reported to the commission which is trying to frame a convention for the control and manufacture of arms, on the ground that it did not go far enough.

DEMAND $150,000 FOR REJECTED IMMIGRANTS

New York, Aug. 29 (AP)—Eleven steamship companies filed suits for $150,000 in federal court today against the collector of the port of New York, as reparation for alleged improper rejection of immigrants. Many immigrants were ordered returned, it was charged, when they had resided in this country five to seven years and had gone abroad with every intention of resuming residence here. Many of the immigrants were said to have possessed proper American visas and the steamship companies believed them entitled to be transported to American ports.

KILLS CHARGES OF BLASPHEMY

One sentence extracted from a person's speech does not constitute proof of blasphemy, Judge Michael J. Murray of Municipal Court said today in a formal statement explaining why the warrant against Dr. Horace M. Kallen, New York educator, who spoke at the Sacco-Vanzetti memorial meeting, was withdrawn.

"No report of the Kallen speech was taken down," said the statement.

"A statement complained of must not only be willful, but must appear to have been delivered with bad purpose."

"Some danger surely exists in taking a single sentence apart from the rest of the context. The language employed may have been used inadvertently in the heat of an earnest argument. Such an utterance would not constitute a wilful blasphemy prohibited by statute. No warrant is to issue."

CHICAGO THEATERS AT WAR WITH MUSICIANS' UNIONS

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP)—Warfare today broke out between the theaters and the Chicago Federation of Musicians. The Illinois Theater had to postpone the opening of George M. Cohan's play, "Whispering Friends," when musicians demanded an orchestra of 13 pieces for the play, which requires no music. Stage hands joined in a sympathetic demonstration. Today owners of 50 movie houses planning to install talking pictures announced they would not comply with the musicians' union demand to install orchestras.

At the inquest, Falk, still slightly under the effects of morphine liquor, collapsed over the body of his son. He had to be carried from the undertaking rooms. Falk's only daughter, Vernice, who, with her mother, witnessed the tragedy, also collapsed.

Don't fool yourself
Since halitosis never announces itself to the victim, you simply cannot know when you have it.

Halitosis makes you unpopular

If you are not as popular as you wish to be, look for the cause. Possibly it is halitosis (unpleasant breath)—the unpardonable social offense.

It is impossible for you to tell when you have halitosis. It never announces itself to you.

The one way to be sure of not having it is to rinse the mouth systematically every day with Listerine—especially before meeting others.

Listerine immediately checks halitosis because it is a powerful deodorant. Even vigorous odors like that of onion and fish yield to it.

Keep a bottle handy in home and office. Use it every day. It puts you on the polite, popular and profitable side. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

NORTH SHORE SOCIETY PLANS FASHION FETE—BETTY ALDEN

Event to Be Staged a Week From Today to Aid Babies' Hospital

TO SWAY AND POISE AND POSTURE WITH ALMOST professional aplomb is no effort at all to local feminine elegantes. Lithe and fair are they; sophisticated as to what's what sartorially and so well versed in the model's ways that almost any girl of the Smart Set can adorn a fashion show supremely well. Miss Betty Moulton enrolls a group for the Fashion Fete set for September 5, at Brackenside in Hamilton, the Augustus F. Goodwin estate, when a golden shower will fall into the coffers of the North Shore Babies' Hospital, and North Shore's girls will be on parade.

A MOST ENGAGING SEXTET HAS MISS MOULTON ARranged for. Of course it includes her pretty self, and none is more proficient in the quick change from frock to frock, the hasty arrangement of accessories, and the calm and elegant appearance in the calcium. Miss Edith Wolcott, daughter of the S. Huntington Wolcotts, is a model, as well she can be, having a flair for wearing smart clothes with Parisian finesse coupled with American dash.

VIVACIOUS MISS PHYLLIS ELLSWORTH, ONE OF THE BUD crop this autumn, is to wear fetching frocks in the fashion fete. So is Miss Helen Rust, a fairylike creature whose wardrobe is rich in exactly the same sort of confections the Fifth ave. couturier is sending over for the occasion. Miss Virginia Ayres, pink cheeked and gulchritudinous, and Miss Agnes Boardman, she of the flashing eyes and dimpled smile, complete the sextet of fair ones who will wear smart creations for sweet charity's sake.

MISS MOULTON REPORTS THAT THE ADVANCE SALE OF tickets is "wonderful." And that each and every patroness has taken several. Which means that the North Shore's most highest will sip aromatic colong as they pass on the merits of autumnal frocks and hats, and so make the fete an enormous social success. The financial success is already well assured. From its gilded "A's" to its final glittering "W" the patroness list is overwhelmingly important. Names of altitudinously placed matrons commence with that of Mrs. Rodolphs L. Agassiz and end with that of Mrs. Oliver Wolcott.

CASTING AN EYE DOWN THE LIST'S LENGTH, I NOTE inscribed Mrs. George von L. Meyer, mistress of beautiful "Rockmaple"; Mrs. Bayard Warren, admired for her smart clothes and her lilting soprano; Mrs. Hendricks Hallet Waltman, Smart Set light turned playwright; Mrs. Philip Dexter of the old guard aristocracy; Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge, and her charming daughter-in-law, Mrs. "Jeff" Coolidge, Jr.; Mrs. John K. Howard, blonde and lovely; and her sister, Mrs. Cornelius Conway Felton, equally attractive but brunette as to coloring; Mrs. Augustus F. Goodwin, mistress of marvelous "Brackenside" and all its treasures and beauties. And others of like significance, ad infinitum.

MADAME FARRAR IS TO LIFT UP HER FAMOUS SOPRANO at Stillington Hall tomorrow evening, and so furnishes a fittingly grand climax to the musicale-theatrical season as Leslie Buswell arranged it at his picturesque Gloucester theater. I believe the world-renowned songstress is to be a guest at Stillington during her very brief North Shore stay; and also that festal occasions are taboo, according to the wishes of the diva herself. Not that North Shore hostesses would not delight to entertain Madame Farrar. Quite the contrary, in fact. Were she so inclined the social trumpets would blow and dinners, luncheons, teas and suppers follow in close order.

MISS ELIZABETH MOULTON

Society girl is a chief assistant at arranging the Fashion Fete and Tea for which Mrs. Augustus Goodwin loans her North Shore estate and which benefits the North Shore Babies' Hospital.

THIS TIME, HOWEVER, SOCIETY'S ENCOUNTER WITH Madame Farrar is confined almost entirely to that furnished by her stage appearance. North Shore big wigs are Stillington subscribers. Mrs. Joseph Letter, Mrs. Bryce J. Allen, Mrs. Maynard Ladd, Mrs. George von L. Meyer, Mrs. William H. Moors, Mrs. Howland Twombley, Mrs. Neil Rantoul, Mr. James H. Proctor, Mrs. Frederick M. Alger, Miss Cecelia Beaux, Mrs. George Dobyne, Mrs. J. Henry Lanesahire, Mrs. John Greenough, are among them. Madame Henry Lee Higginson, beloved and venerated, who just recently celebrated her 91st birthday, lends the honor of her name to the list and the honor of her presence to the musicale.

BOSTONIANS WHO HAVE delighted in the baryitone of David McClosky are interested in his marriage this afternoon to Miss Maurine Palmer, a fair Kansan. Marriage rites were solemnized in Trinity Church, with the Rev. Henry K. Sherrill tying the nuptial knot. The romance has its origin in the mutual interest of bride and bridegroom in music, the former having graduated from the Conservatory and the latter being very well known on concert stages.

A FORECAST OF AUTUMNAL weddings still to be celebrated was in bridesmaids' frocks and hats ranging from faintest honey yellow through radiant maple brown. Maid of honor in ivory tulle and bride in the accepted crystal white complemented one another. The bride wore her chiffon velvets in period fashion, and carried lilies, and the honor maid's flowers were yellow blossoms. Miss Helen Marshall was chief attendant and the others were Miss Elizabeth Palmer, who hails from Kansas, and Miss Louise Reynolds of Vermont.

EDMUND McCLOSKY WAS best man for his brother, and Burton Riker, Arthur Brown, Harand and Frank McClosky were ushers. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Palmer of Pittsburg, Kansas. After the church rites were over, wedding guests went to the Hotel Vendome for the reception.

TWO OCTOBER RACE MEETS PLANNED

Lovers of horse-racing in New England are anticipating with considerable interest two meets that are planned for the month of October and both of which have been sanctioned by the Hubs Committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association.

The first meet will be held at the Norfolk Hunt Club on Saturday, Oct. 13, over the club's course at Medfield. The second meet will be held at Willow Dale, the country estate of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Palmer.

There will be five races at the Norfolk Hunt Club meet, the first being called at 2 p. m. This will be a flat race for three-year-olds to carry 150 pounds; four-year-olds and upwards to carry 165 pounds. The race is for gentlemen riders for a purse and a plate offered by Mr. and Mrs. Augustus F. Goodwin. The second race is also a flat race for 160-pounds and upwards.

Henry G. Vaughn, M. F. H. of Norfolk Hunt Club, stated the remaining three races will be steeplechases, the first being for gentlemen riders over a distance of about two and one-half miles for a purse of $500 and a plate offered by Mrs. Henry G. Vaughn.

Like the Norfolk Hunt meet the Myopia Hunt Club will stage two flat races and three steeplechases. The feature event will be for the Myopia Challenge Cup, an open steeplechase for gentlemen or professional riders over a distance of three and a half miles for a purse and cup.

BATTLE OF R. I. ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED

Newport, R. I., Aug. 29 (AP)—City and State today joined in observance of the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Rhode Island, that gallant and nearly successful attempt to terminate the Revolution three years before the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown.

Encouraged by the presence of a large French fleet under Count d'Estaing in Narragansett waters, the Americans occupied the northern part of the Island and were pressing the British encamped about Newport, when August 29, 1778, the two armies came into touch.

HEAVY BRITISH LOSS.

The Colonists made repeated stands and inflicted heavy loss on the British but continued their slow withdrawal. At one point the Americans under Col. Wigglesworth had met with such success in repulsing the Red Coat attack near Quaker Hill that Gen. Sullivan was forced to dispatch one of his most daring officers, Col. John Trumbull, to order the troops to fall back.

As Trumbull approached Wigglesworth after a hazardous ride through embattled troops, the latter exclaimed, "Don't say a word, Trumbull! I know your errand, but don't speak; we will beat them in a moment."

Trumbull, however, pointed out the oblique advance of a strong body of Hessians to the rear of the American position and Wigglesworth was reluctantly forced to give ground.

WAS STRATEGIC MOVE.

All efforts to cut the Americans off having failed the British rested in the entrenchments along Quaker, Turkey and Anthony Hills, and the battle was over at 4 o'clock with the Americans in control of the field.

The following day, Sunday, both armies buried their dead in anticipation of renewal of the fighting on Monday, but about noon a dispatch from Gen. Washington arrived advising that Lord Howe had left New York with 5000 reinforcements, and an English fleet was off Block Island. Simultaneously came news that the French fleet at Boston could not return as soon as had been expected and a retreat was unanimously determined upon.

The withdrawal across the Tiverton river has been regarded as one of the most strategic of the war.

Parisians Foil Burglars by 'Hocking' Gems

Paris, Aug. 29 (INS)—The Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact has nothing on the "pact" between municipal pawn brokers and flat dwellers to outlaw the second story man.

In practice it works out like this:

When a Parisian family leaves for the country gold and silverware and jewelry are taken to any of a thousand pawn brokers and unceremoniously "hocked." In the pawn broker's vaults it is safe from the activities of the night-prowling gentry and provides some extra cash for vacation requirements.

A few years ago such families would have considered it a disgrace to have dealings with "Uncle."

100,000 FACING HUNGER IN HAITIAN STORM ZONE

Port-au-Prince, Haiti, Aug. 29 (AP)—An estimation that outside aid is needed for rehabilitation of the hurricane-stricken district of Haiti was contained in a statement issued by President Borno today. The statement said:

"More than 100 people are facing starvation in the hurricane devastated area. All animals were killed and entire crops were destroyed. Cultivated farms were either drowned out of completely washed out. It will take from three to six months to grow new crops.

CIRCUS 'STRONG MAN' DAD OF EUGENIC BABY

Later, he said, she approached him in a roundabout way on the matter of entering a matrimonial experiment for the purpose of producing an eugenic progeny.

Modernity advises he was paid $5,000 for two visits to the woman, he admitting "Miss Annie" as Mrs. Hutchins.

Efforts to get in touch with Mrs. Hutchins today were fruitless. She has moved from her former address and the exact of her whereabouts could be obtained.

Hutchins's wife, who lived in Holyoke, Mass., with her father, Aaron, and her 21-month-old child, Carolyn, is now in New York. She has not seen her husband for some time.

SEES GOOD WINTER MART FOR DIAMONDS

Irving Kaufman, of the Boston diamond importing house of A. Kaufman and Sons, has returned from Europe after a trip of several months, during which he visited Amsterdam, Brussels, London and Paris. During his sojourn Mr. Kaufman remarked a scarcity of diamonds in the larger Old World markets. This he interprets as an indication of good business for the coming winter season.

81 ARLINGTON STREET

CHURCHES BAR REV. NORWOOD

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 29 (AP)—The Halifax herald says today that owing to objections registered by certain Anglican rectors against what they term his "modernist views," the Rev. Robert Norwood of New York will do his preaching in other pulpits than those of the Anglican church while he is in Nova Scotia.

Dr. Norwood, rector of St. Bartholomew's, New York, is here on a vacation trip. He is a native of Nova Scotia.

The statements attributed to Dr. Norwood in the paper says, were considered by those making the protest as calculated to "disturb the faith."

The paper quotes Dr. Norwood as saying, "I have reached the conclusion that I will not again enter the pulpit of an Anglican church in Nova Scotia."

He told the paper that those making the protest had got his utterances "all twisted up."

GRAND JURY PROBES N. Y. SUBWAY CRASH

New York, Aug. 29 (INS)—Frank T. Hedley, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, was expected to be one of the first witnesses examined as Dist. Atty. Joab H. Banton today opened a formal grand jury investigation of the Times sq. subway wreck, which cost the lives of 16 persons. A score of other officers and employes of the Transit company also will be questioned. The newest theory is that a faulty tripping lever on one of the cars caused the crash. It is contended that a faulty lever would trip a light in the switching tower and cause the switch to be thrown before the entire train had passed over the switch.

VICTIM'S BODY FOUND AFTER BRIDGE CRASH

The body of Warren Bickford, 32 of Somerville, buried into the Charles river when the car which he was driving was struck by an automobile on Harvard bridge, was recovered by police today.

Cambridge authorities immediately announced that Lewis E. Keith, Lynn realtor, the driver of the automobile, would be arraigned in East Cambridge District Court on a charge of manslaughter.

Keith told the police he was driving in the automobile across the bridge from Boston to Cambridge. In the wake of the lumbering horse ice wagon, on the seat of which Bickford was perched.

His was a short distance in the rear of the ice wagon, proceeding at about 20 miles an hour, when a gust of wind blew his hat off. He reached for his hat with his right hand, and believed that his foot pressed the accelerator. The car swerved to the right and crashed into the rear end of the heavy ice wagon. Eckford was shot out of the seat and over the rail.

Scores of persons saw the man's body as it cleared the rail and fell into the Charles river, failing to resurface.

Police were notified and the body was recovered after an all night search. It was reported that the skull was fractured, which would bear out the theory expressed by police at the time of the accident, that Bickford's head struck either the top of the wagon or the bridge rail.

The force of the impact sent the pair of horses sprawling on the sidewalk.

EXPLAINS NEW MOXIE CO.

The original Moxie Company of Massachusetts is still the sole manufacturer and New England distributor of Moxie. The recently organized Moxie Company of America is a separate organization devoted to selling and outside New England distribution exclusively.

These distinctions were set forth today by Francis L. Stetson, president of the Massachusetts company whose father created the Moxie formula more than 30 years ago. The original company has always been controlled by the Stetson family and Harry A. Thompson, another son of the founder, is its treasurer. Mr. Thompson said:

"The Moxie Company of Massachusetts is not the parent company of the Moxie Company of America. This new organization is a separate and distinct company, organized to distribute the product in all territories outside of New England. The Moxie Company of Massachusetts has absolutely no connection with the Moxie Company of America, except as any manufacturer may have with his exclusive distributor."

Miss Savidge was brought before the police on judicial proceedings following her arrest with Sir Leo Money on charges of disorderly conduct in the park. Both were acquitted.

NOTE FROM LOST DOLE FLIERS CALLED 'HOAX'

Santa Monica, Cal., Aug. 29 (INS)—A note signed with the names of two of the missing Dole flight fliers, Jack Frost and Gordon Beoit, was branded as a hoax today by police. Officers reported that a man churned the note over to them, saying that two boys found it in a bottle on Redondo Beach.

EX-GOVERNOR'S SON SUES FOR DIVORCE

Waterbury, Ct., Aug. 29 (AP)—A divorce on grounds of cruelty is asked in a petition filed in Superior Court by counsel for Atty. Roger Sherman Baldwin, son of former Governor Simeon Baldwin, who died recently leaving an estate of more than $300,000.

Baldwin charges his wife, the former Olive Porter, with being cruel to him since their marriage on May 3, 1910, at West Palm Beach, Fla.

Efforts to have Baldwin committed to an asylum were made through the probate court recently, but failed when Dr. A. R. Diefendorf, an alienist of New Haven, pronounced him sane. At that time, the names of the former persons making the commitment were not given out.

Service of the writ in the divorce action was made on Mrs. Baldwin in Mystic.

Called From Plow to Be North Dakota's Ruler

Bismarck, N. D., Aug. 29 (AP)—Walter E. Maddock, Plaza farmer, today became the Governor of North Dakota.

Called from his harvest field to assume the duties of Chief Executive by reason of the death of Governor A. G. Sorlie, Maddock took the oath of office in the room which for four years had been Governor Sorlie's private office.

Maddock, Lieutenant-Governor for more than three years, will perform the duties of the governorship until Sorlie's successor, to be elected in November, takes office next January. He is the State's 15th Governor.

The death of Governor Sorlie will have no effect on the State election next November, it was agreed by the politicians. In some quarters, however, it was considered possible that it might have some slight effect on the national campaign as it pertains to North Dakota.

or more prominent summoned before the grand jury today.

LOSS OF $25,000,000.

It is expected that the probe in Boston by the Grand Jury will last at least two more days.

Thus far 200 investors have been revealed as from Massachusetts and their total loss will figure in the neighborhood of $1,250,000. In all New England the loss will total $25,000,000, Inspector Cochran said.

At least two of the organizations connected with the frauds were registered in Massachusetts, Cochran said.

These were the Missouri-Kansas Farms Co., whose shares sold for $100 each, and the Farms Company of Massachusetts, also with $100 subscriptions.

Judge Sylvester R. Bush of the attorney-general's office in Washington is in charge of the investigation by the Federal Grand Jury at Boston.

He recently came from Omaha, Neb., where he conducted a similar investigation.

A "gentleman's agreement" has now been reached, which is fairly satisfactory to all three countries.

Power Trust 'Strategy'

NATIONAL ELECTRIC LIGHT ASSOCIATION
29 WEST 39TH STREET
NEW YORK
August 4, 1928

Personal

Mr G G Neff, Vice President
Wisconsin River Power Company
Madison, Wisconsin

Dear Mr Neff:

Undoubtedly you have had opportunity by this time to read the copy of the report "Electricity in Rural Districts Served by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario" by F A Stewart, Professor of Agricultural Engineering at the University of Minnesota, recently sent you.

It is felt that a copy of this report should be placed in the hands of every member of Congress who is undecided on this question and who would be glad to receive this valuable information. Also it is believed that it is preferable for them to be sent to the Senators and Representatives with a letter tying it in with local, or state, agricultural electrification progress, rather than to have it sent out from National Headquarters. We, therefore, are taking the liberty of forwarding under separate cover a number of copies of the report.

It is suggested that a letter be written to each Senator and Representative you select telling him that the copy is going forward to him under separate cover and explaining that it is being sent because of the widespread interest in your state on the subject of farm electrification and the fact that extravagant claims as to the progress of rural electrification under the Hydro-Electric Commission have frequently been made. Wherever possible, attention might be called in the letter to the local, or state, status of rural electrification projects where they are being carried on in cooperation with the Committee on the Relation of Electricity to Agriculture, or in other states attention could be directed to the progress already made in electrifying farms, or difficulties of electrifying farms could be pointed out.

These letters should be written and the books sent directly from your company, or by mutual friends or acquaintances, should you prefer to handle the matter in this way.

Very truly yours,

M H Aylesworth
Managing Director

THE information in Professor Stewart's report, according to the National Electric Light Association managing director, is "reliable." It is noteworthy that Mr. Aylesworth suggests to his colleague, Mr. Neff, that "it is preferable for them to be sent to senators and representatives with a letter tying it in with local, or state, agricultural electrification progress, rather than have it sent out from national headquarters."

RAILROAD POST FOR SON OF PRESIDENT

Holyoke, Aug. 29—The Sphinx that sealed its lips on the nature of that job that John Coolidge is going to fill, has let the cat out of the bag. John is going to be a railroad man.

That is what one of his close friends here states. And he says he knows what he is talking about.

The friend's statement is that the son of the President is going into the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad, and will enter upon his new duties early in September.

It is known that John is keenly interested in railroading, and his ambition to make this his life work is said to have come into his mind after he drove a locomotive over a short line but at top speed, this summer.

This happened while he was on a visit to be north of Brule, where he had been with his parents.

On the return, John was invited into the cab. He donned the official engineer uniform, and was at the throttle after being told how to handle the mechanism. He made good on that ride, was complimented, and soon afterward was offered a position with a railroad in that section, it was announced.

GIRL COLLAPSES IN COURT

Before she could inform the court whether William Cahoon of Braintree was the man driving a car that sped from the scene of a South Boston accident, Mary Cahill, 16, of Ninth st., South Boston, collapsed on the witness stand in South Boston District court today.

Her testimony, given by proxy by police who told the court the girl could not make an ostive identification, resulted in the Braintree man being adjudged not guilty.

Cahoon was accused of being involved in a crash in front of the Cahill girl's home where a car hit the curb, caromed off and struck a bakery wagon following which the driver sped away.

MRS. STETSON IS REPORTED TO BE DYING

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 29—Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, leader of the dissenting faction of the Christian Science creed, is seriously ill at the Hotel Sagamore and grave concern is expressed.

All information concerning the patient's health is refused by the hotel management and persons who have visited her suite. They admit only that she is in her room. Questions as to the nature and extent of her illness are met with silence. Yet despite the secrecy surrounding her, it became known today that Mrs. Stetson has been warned of the possibility of death and it has been suggested that she make a statement concerning her present condition and her belief in the future.

Mrs. Stetson for a long time has contended that she never would die, either physically or spiritually. From platform and through the radio, she has proclaimed that only those who sinned died and that she would live so that sin would not stain her and everlasting life would be assured.

She has refused steadfastly to reveal her age, declaring in recent years that she always existed, although in autobiographical statements she wrote that she was born, using that word, unqualified, at Waldoboro, Me., the daughter of Peabody Simmons, a carpenter, and Salome Sprague.

All the records of the little town were burned several years ago, but old residents of the community declared recently that Mrs. Stetson must be as least 86 years of age.

YOUTH'S TROUSERS RIPPED BY DOG

Matthew Rosemond, 22, of 853 East 5th st., South Boston, was badly bitten on the right leg and a portion of his trousers was ripped off while he was walking along East 5th st., near M st. A large collie dog darted from the opposite side of the street and sunk his teeth into Rosemond's leg. Rosemond beat the dog off.

The youth was taken to the office of Dr. Charles Mackey on East Broadway, where the injury was treated. Later he went home.

DRY LAW PETITIONER GETS HEARING SEPT. 4

Salem, Aug. 29—George L. Graham of Winthrop, who was charged with filing an unlawful petition containing forged names, was held in $500 bail in district court for a hearing on September 4. Graham pleaded not guilty and furnished his own bail.

The petition, which contained the names of a number of clergymen was for a referendum on the 18th amendment. Graham said he hired three men to obtain the signatures and declared he thought the names were genuine.

BYRD NAMES SHIP AFTER HIS MOTHER

New York, Aug. 29—The Chelsea, second ship in Commander Richard E. Byrd's Antarctic expedition, has been renamed the Eleanor Bolling, after the commander's mother. Byrd said his mother had been the warmest supporter of his adventures since she permitted him to make a round the world trip at the age of 18.

POWER TRUST "LINES UP" EDITORS

By M. L. RAMSAY
Universal Service

Washington, Aug. 29—Power propagandists lined up editors in towns and small cities to support their fight to put city-owned gas and electric plants out of business, it is shown in Federal Trade Commission documents.

A letter from the files of the Missouri propaganda bureau addressed by J. B. Sheridan, director, to A. V. Wainwright, operating vice-president of the Inland Power & Light Corporation, St. Louis, said:

"The Central Missouri Press Association will convene at Warsaw, Mo., July 6-9. This association covers a great deal of the territory of the Missouri Public Service Company south of Pleasant Hill, and some cities which have municipally owned plants which appear to offer some possibilities for private ownership. That is, editors of newspapers in some of the towns which have municipal plants have told me that they would like to see them privately owned.

"It may be that you would like to have Mr. Leslie or some other member of your organization meet editors who publish newspapers in many cities in the territory served by your properties in West Missouri.

"I plan to attend this meeting, and I can give such a representative some good introductions."

Wainwright replied:

"We think it will be highly desirable for Mr. Leslie to attend and do some work in connection with eliminating the municipally owned plants."

To a convention of New Mexico utility executives, George E. Lewis, Rocky Mountain propagandist, gave this counsel:

"Only by cultivating the friendship and confidence of the press during calm times will you be able to invoke aid and co-operation during times of stress. When you go back home remember this.

"And keep on remembering it. It may save you thousands of dollars. It may gain you a franchise, it may absolutely save your property to you sometime."

Newburyport, Aug. 28 — The names of Alexander Burke, 20 Olive st., and Frank W. Goodwin, 15 Orange st., were drawn in a venire served by City Marshal John L. McLean for duty in the Superior Court at Salem next month.

Kellogg and Cosgrave Sail on Warship for Erin

Havre, France, Aug. 29 (AP)—Secretary Kellogg said farewell to France today sailing on the cruiser Detroit for Ireland.

Havre gave him a fitting goodby. The navy was lined with people when he went aboard. A French regimental band played "The Hymn of Departure," while the salutsman stood at attention on the deck of the Detroit as the American flag was hoisted to the masthead.

Mr Kellogg arrived from Paris on a special train placed at his disposal by the government.

President Cosgrave of Ireland accompanied him to Ireland aboard the Detroit.

NEW EL BUSES ON THIS WEEK

Boston Elevated patrons who use the Ashmont-Cambridge line have a treat in store at the end of the week when a score of newly designed auto buses will be placed in service.

The buses, which seat 32 passengers each, are of the de luxe type. They have already been given a tryout and have been praised by the persons using them.

A new type of upholstery adds to the comfort of the riders, while the seating arrangement is such that half a dozen more passengers can be accommodated than on the ordinary buses.

FIND ORE MINES BY ELECTRICAL 'EARTHQUAKE'

Electrical earthquakes sent down into the ground to determine whether ore is present were described today to American mining engineers attending the fall meeting of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers at the Copley-Plaza Hotel.

By measuring the strength of those artificial tremors and their time of return to the surface, engineers can determine, with ever-increasing accuracy, where to look for ore, it was explained.

An exhibition of the instruments and methods—the first exhibition ever held in America of means of finding ores and oil-bearing strictures that do not show on the surface of the ground—was given at Tech for the benefit of the engineers attending the convention.

A new art and science is in the process of creation and Boston is taking the lead in presenting it to the world, according to leaders in this field of research.

Two local engineers of world-wide repute will be guests of honor at a banquet tomorrow night, these being John Hays Hammond of Gloucester and Professor Emeritus Robert H. Richards of M. I. T.

Mayor Nichols greeted the visitors today and Dean Hughes of Harvard, Prof. Norton of Technology and Col. Charles R. Gow of Tufts told them about the local engineering and scientific schools. There will be a dinner and formal meeting this evening and also a smoker at the University Club, while many social affairs have been arranged for leisure moments tomorrow and Friday.

MILLICENT, Duchess of Sutherland chooses OLD GOLD

WHILE having tea with several American friends, someone suggested that it would be amusing to try the blindfold cigarette test, now so popular in America. I volunteered as the subject, and while blindfolded, smoked the four different makes of cigarettes . . . each brand making its appeal "incognito." Without the least hesitation, I named Cigarette Number 3 as the best—and it proved to be an OLD GOLD. I am not at all clairvoyant, nor am I a particularly good guesser. I identified my favorite cigarette, OLD GOLD, because its delightful smoothness and coolness immediately distinguished it, to my taste and throat, from the other brands.

Millicent Sutherland

The Duchess made the blindfold test at Le Maison du Monastere—her beautiful country place in France. The Duchess was asked to smoke one each of the four leading American brands, clearing her taste with coffee between smokes. Only one question was asked: "Which one do you like best?"

MILLICENT, DUCHESS OF SUTHERLAND, daughter of the Earl of Rosslyn. She is deeply interested in social questions, and is widely known as a writer of notable books and plays. She is one of the most brilliant and active women in England.

What is this quality that tells . . . even in the dark?

OLD GOLD'S honey-like smoothness . . . that's the net of it. But this cool and fragrant charm can come only from the heart-leaves of the tobacco plant. No heavy, coarse top-leaves . . . no withered ground-leaves. That's why OLD GOLDS are different, better . . . why you can pick them with your eyes closed.

SMOOTHER AND BETTER—"NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD"

MANY STATES TO BE DOUBTFUL TO LAST, SAYS POLL ANALYST

PARTY LINES ARE TWISTED BY CAMPAIGN ISSUES

By CHARLES WHEELER
Noted Political Analyst

Chicago, Aug. 29—How the normal lines of cleavage have been twisted in all sections of the country since Governor Smith took a swing at the drys, is beginning to show in the nationwide straw vote being taken by the Hearst publications.

With more than 250,000 straw votes tabulated the evidence accumulates that the total vote this year will be so unprecedented as to render doubtful many states right up to the last minute.

Since Governor Smith refused to stand for the equalization fee of the farm measure and at the same time declared for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, sections of Indiana have turned somersaults.

In all the industrial plants, beginning with the steel workers at Gary and extending along the lake line up to the Cook county line, Smith is out in front, on the face of the straw vote thus far checked, while rural Indiana is swinging heavily to Hoover.

LURES MILL WORKERS

Further inquiry, the reports show, leads to the conclusion that the wet issue is the lodestone that is herding the mill workers into the Democratic fold for the President.

G. O. P. strategists are confident that Governor Smith's creed when he took a stand for letting down the immigration bars sufficiently to permit what they term a greater influx of labor from Europe.

While both candidates are for screening the ins that it will not operate quite so harshly against relatives of those already here, it is the Republican contention that Governor Smith went much farther and indicated an intention to support a general overhauling that would permit of much greater volume of immigration as to original applications.

G. O. P. strategists are prepared to demonstrate, through labor leaders, that any wholesale letting down of the bars to European labor might upset the whole labor market in the United States.

As between his light wines and beer, and a little "aqua vita" on the side, and a demoralized labor market, due to the Hoover rule, the G. O. P. chiefs will try to demonstrate the Indiana worker cannot hesitate in making his choice.

In the statewide percentage column, Governor Smith shows a large gain over the Davis vote of four years ago, while Hoover figures point to a slump from the Coolidge vote, but in neither case is the percentage sufficient, thus far to indicate that Smith can get the state's electoral vote.

For example, the Hoover vote shows, in aggregate, 52.8, taking the whole territory canvassed, as against 47.2 per cent for Smith. But even this is a big gain for the Democrats, as four years ago Coolidge polled 65.5 per cent of the vote to 24.5 per cent given Davis.

Smith's gain, therefore, is almost 13 per cent on the total vote, but this margin is not enough to overcome the Hoover lead.

Present indications are that Indiana will be much closer than four years ago, when Coolidge had a plurality of 205,441, but that the state's 15 electoral votes will be returned for Hoover.

Since 1892, when Cleveland carried the state over Harrison with the narrow lead of about 7000 votes, Indiana has gone Democratic in a national election only once, and that was in the big Bull Moose split of 1912, although the vote in several campaigns was close.

NORMALLY REPUBLICAN

McKinley led Bryan in 1896 by 18,009 and in 1900 by about 27,000. Roosevelt, of course, ran away with it in 1904, but in 1908 Taft's lead over Bryan was a little better than 10,000.

In 1916 Hughes won the state by only 7000. Harding snowed Cox under in 1920 with a lead of 172,000, while Coolidge piled up a plurality of better than 205,000.

GIGANTIC VOTE FOR JOHNSON PILING UP

San Francisco, Aug. 29 (INS)—Incomplete returns today show that Senator Hiram W. Johnson swept the state with a gigantic vote in yesterday's primary for renomination as the Republican candidate for United States Senator. The Democrats nominated Minor Moore, a Los Angeles attorney.

Some precincts in San Francisco gave a 60 to 1 count for Johnson. Los Angeles was 8 to 1 or better and Alameda, county 6 to 1 in his favor.

Charles H. Randall of Los Angeles, former congressman, ran as a Republican and as a prohibitionist. He was opposed by Wiley J. Phillips for the prohibition nomination.

Assured of victory, Senator Johnson issued this statement:

"I am extremely grateful to the people for the emphatic vote of confidence. I look forward to a really united party in the coming campaign which will mean an overwhelming Republican victory in November."

Sen. Blaine Backs Smith; Flays "Killing Snoopers"

Burlington, Wis., Aug. 29 (AP)—U. S. Senator John B. Blaine, Republican, in a street speech here said he had no doubt that "most of his friends and supporters would vote for Al Smith for President in November."

His statement was received with cheering by his audience.

"These are times when partisanship must not blind us," he said. "And we must condemn Republican silence on the scandals of Republican regimes of recent years as an accessory after the fact."

The recent death of a Chicago man by the hand of a prohibition agent was denounced by the Senator, who said that the prohibition department is honeycombed with crime and bribery and has reached the state where snoopers shoot down innocent men with dumdum bullets.

FOG, SNOW, BAR ITALIA SEARCH

Rome, Aug. 29 (AP)—Fog and snow, the old enemies of searchers for survivors of the Italia expedition, are again hampering the vessels and aviators who are combing the district east of Northeast Land for traces of the six missing Italians and the equal number of French and Norwegian rescuers who were aboard the Roald Amundsen.

A report from the Nobile base ship, Citta di Milano, given out today through the Stefani News Agency, said that during a rift in the adverse conditions three surveys were made of the northern shore of Great Island. These confirm the result of previous explorations in that they failed to reveal traces of humans or any debris of the dirigible Italia.

Great Island lies off Cape Leigh Smith and is southeast of the point near Foyn Island, where the Italia crashed on May 25 when it was bringing Gen. Umberto Nobile and his expedition back from the North Pole.

SAYS PARIS SEEKS BERLIN AID ON U. S. WAR DEBTS

Berlin, Aug. 29 (INS)—A report that Paris will consent to Franco-Rhineland evacuations if Germany will intervene with the United States to bring about an international conference for consideration of war debts and reparations was published today by the newspaper Berliner Zeitung am Mittag, which is believed to have obtained information close to Foreign Secretary Stresemann.

URGE HOOVER TO SPEED DRIVE IN NEW ENGLAND

Washington, Aug. 29 (AP)—Cross currents of advice and opinion are bearing down upon Herbert Hoover as he busies himself here determining campaign policies and deciding upon the personnel of the organization.

Those come largely from east and south, but some from the west, as the Republican presidential candidate confers with his chief advisers from the various sections and gets his grip firmly upon the controls of the party machinery.

With the return of Hoover from the west, there has been an increasing pressure from New York and New England for greater activities in those sections. The set up of the eastern organization never has been precisely described and apparently there are several groups operating more or less independently.

One set of managers now advises a general headquarters for the east, and New York city while others propose that the fight in New York and New Jersey be carried on under a directing force distinct from the one to have charge of affairs in New England and especially in states like where the Democrats are concentrating their efforts.

There also is an increasing demand from the south for more effective organization work there. In that section too, some advisers would have the effort concentrated largely in those states where local leaders claim Hoover sentiment has been manifested.

Smith Off to Syracuse to Attend State Fair

New York, Aug. 29 (AP)—Governor Smith today goes to Syracuse, where tonight he will attend the annual "farm dinner" given by Jerome D. Barnum, publisher of the Syracuse Post Standard. Tomorrow the Governor will make his yearly visit to the State Fair in Syracuse and if weather conditions are favorable will make a brief non-political talk in the open air.

He expects to return to Albany Thursday night and spend a quiet week-end.

Reiterating his determination to avoid speaking out of doors as much as possible when he begins his swing around the country, Smith told newspapermen the only reason he broke this rule at Newark was because a large crowd had waited several hours to see and cheer him. He has adopted the principle that it does not pay in the game of politics to disappoint crowds such as that which gave him a noisy send-off in Newark.

DEMOCRATS TO SPEND MILLION IN CORN BELT

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 29—"More than a million dollars to carry the Middle-West," was the Democratic program for the great agricultural belt as party managers wound up today their three-day conference here with Smith-Robinson warriors from ten states of the upper Mississippi Valley battleground.

John J. Raskob, Democratic national chairman, outlined the program as he prepared to depart with his chief lieutenants for Hot Springs Ark., to attend the notification tomorrow of Senator Joe. T. Robinson, vice-presidential nominee.

"The national committee plans to spend $500,000 on the farm drive in the ten corn-belt states," Raskob said.

"Our reports indicate a majority of the newspapers throughout the agricultural section are normally Republican in policy. We shall, therefore, take other means to reach the voters with Governor Smith's vigorous advocacy of equality for agriculture."

It is planned to spend $600,000 over the radio, he said.

The budget approved calls for an average outlay of a little less than $1000 for each of the 600 counties in the region.

Two distinct organizations are to be established in the Middle-West to corral the feminine vote, according to the program approved by Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, vice-chairman of the national committee, and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, chairman of the women's advisory committee.

One drive will be centered upon the woman's vote in the moist cities, and another upon the rural housewife on the issue of farm relief.

Smith Backers Hope to Carry California

San Francisco, Aug. 29 (AP)—Governor Smith of New York will invade California on a whirlwind tour within five weeks, said an announcement today by Justis S. Ward, San Francisco Democratic leader. He said Smith would make one speech in San Francisco, another in Los Angeles, and possibly others in both northern and southern California.

"It has been decided to make an intensive and determined fight to carry Hoover's home state, California, for the Smith-Robinson ticket in November," said Wardell.

You don't hear it run

Don't miss the Special Demonstration all this week

EVEN if you have only a few minutes to spare, don't put off any longer seeing the New Frigidaire, the latest development in automatic refrigeration.

See for yourself the conveniences that women everywhere are talking about. And above all check for yourself its incredibly quiet operation. You don't hear it start. You don't hear it stop. You don't hear it run.

The pre-tested automatic refrigerator

That the New Frigidaire might be quiet, powerful, convenient, dependable, tests and experiments have been carried on for years. Soundproof rooms were constructed. Delicate sound recording instruments were used. The New Frigidaire has operated for days in rooms with a temperature of 100°. . . in rooms filled with steam.

Extensive tests like these, coupled with the experience Frigidaire has gained in the production of more than 500,000 Frigidaires for actual service, make the New Frigidaire truly a pre-tested automatic refrigerator.

See the New Frigidaire for yourself . . . today. We want you to see how much time, work and worry the New Frigidaire will save. The special demonstration lasts all this week. For your convenience we are open each night until ten o'clock. But don't put it off. Come in or phone us today.

It's a TANTRUM

SMASH! Crash! Howl. Some days that child's like sunshine in the house, and some days she's like a tiny, bad-tempered tornado. Then there are broken dolls and damaged pains, broken bric-a-brac and upset chairs, tantrums and screaming fits and pinched fingers.

It's that kind of thing that sets tired nerves on edge, makes irritated tempers even more irritable. And yet no amount of playing or coaxing or petting will bring back Betty's laughter! Her mother knows why, but still hesitates about the remedy . . .

INTESTINAL poisons, of course, get bottled up in children's bodies just the same as they do in adults'. And mothers feel particularly unwilling to run the risk of shocking delicate little systems with ordinary laxatives . . .

Feen-a-mint is different!

In the first place, it's just like a bit of delicious chewing gum. You don't swallow it hastily, or wash it down with water—you chew it.

Because you chew it, its tasteless yet almost magically effective laxative principle is released slowly, the way science meant it to be released.

In this way Feen-a-mint works with the body, not against it, and instead of striking a blow without warning, as it were, helps the system to help itself. Laxative action is so gentle there's not a trace of griping or cramping, yet at the same time so wonderfully thorough that you feel like a different person!

Stop in at your druggist's for a box of Feen-a-mint. It won't torture you with griping pains. It won't poison or weaken the system. It won't enslave you to laxative pills. With it you can correct constipation—now!

BOOZE RING HEADS BANK $10,000,000

SEEK RICH BOOTLEG 'KINGS'

Philadelphia, Aug. 29 (AP)—[illegible]

QUEEN OF MERMAIDS

Phyllis Mashoka, 17, of 23 Edmunds st., Malden, is holding the engraved silver loving cup she received as a reward for her beauty and gracefulness when she paraded before a gathering of Boston art students at Revere. She was chosen the most beautiful of the 100 girls who sought the award.

of a dozen or more big bootleggers who are said to have deposited $10,000,000 in Philadelphia banks in the last year.

Information furnished the grand jury by federal prohibition agents and others, it was said, gave an insight into the inner workings of the rum racket and will result in vast additions to the list of indictments to be returned before the jury has a complete story of gangland's activities and their crimes.

Efforts of lawyers representing liquor traffic interests to prevent the production of books, records and papers dating back to 1921, were futile during the present investigation, it was said, incidental to the probe into gang murders and what lay behind them.

The money is reported to have been deposited in nearly a score of institutions, many of them local trust financial houses, but fictitious names and addresses were used by the depositors. Some of the addresses given were found to be vacant lots, unoccupied buildings, and lots and cemeteries.

Practically all who have been before the grand jury, attended the latter attorneys said, refused to answer questions pertinent. He declined to comment today and refused to say what he was going before the jury for. The inquiry is the result of the many ramifications of underworld activities.

Considerable mystery surrounds the manner in which the big bank deposits were discovered. It was reported they were revealed before the Grand Jury and it was that they were uncovered by detectives working outside under the district attorney's direction.

MY TRUE LIFE STORY - By Gene Tunney

PRIVACY HAD NO PART IN CHAMP'S LIFE

By GENE TUNNEY

Retired Undefeated Heavyweight Champion of the World.
Copyrtaht, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

CHAPTER V

THE winning of the heavyweight championship brought responsibilities and obligations that one who has not been through the mill can not appreciate.

It meant a complete change in the life that theretofore I had regulated with ease and no interference from outside sources.

After the raising of my ring I sank in that rain soaked Philadelphia ring signify[illegible] ... over Dempsey began a saga that never let up until I left Manhattan and ... down New York bay with me this month on my way to Europe.

When in the public eye, interviews, appearances before groups of newspaper [illegible] ... are necessary parts of training in their plans to make ... as to ... I have had them ask me to do impossible things on the days of fights as though they were illiterate ... [illegible]

Interviews are sought by reporters who remain at the training camp during workout sessions. There are visits from friends and friends' friends and old buddies and some who only think they were buddies. There are business matters and legal affairs demanding attention.

The mail is heavy with demands. Letters pour in from all over the world. From a kiss for the baby [illegible] ... of ideas often [illegible] ... that come in the mail.

THE "occupation" of being a champion alone is enough to keep one's time taken up and one's mind and body fatigued.

But that, the worst thing as to ... [illegible] ... wars to the public and press. I [illegible] ... [illegible] ... ing to heavyweight champions.

Just as in the ring, I never have allowed my opponent to fight the way he wanted to, so I have not permitted myself to be swamped by persons whose duty it was to report the champion.

W. S. Cederlof reports as follows—

Instead of "Hoping to get in touch with you soon," his stenographer wrote—

"Hoping to get in touch with you soon."

When she tried to write—

"We hope you enjoy your vacation and have a good rest away from your duties," she accidentally hit the "c" instead of the "d" in "duties," so it read—

"We hope you enjoy your vacation and have a good rest away from your cuties."

"Fine," cried Dorothy, "but who'll play the fourteen-string doubleaction tenor guitero?"

It certainly looked as if the party were going flat.

THEN I OFFERED TO PLAY.

The crowd burst into laughter.

"You may be able to play pool, Jack, but you can't play the fourteen-stringed guitero."

I chuckled to myself. They thought I was about to make a fool of myself.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Unrequited Love

IS it fair to encourage a young man who loves you when you do not reciprocate his love? This in substance is the question asked by Uncertain.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," her letter runs, "I am a young lady of twenty-two. For the past few months I have been going about with a young man of twenty-five, who cares very deeply for me.

"My feelings toward him are purely those of friendship. All this time I have been waiting for these feelings to turn to love, but it seems of no avail. He is a young man of very good character and respects me highly.

"Now, what troubles me is this: My conscience tells me that this is not fair for me to waste his time, as he has told me often of his great regard for me. Shall I break off this affair, which I think will lead nowhere, or shall I continue with it? Your answer will calm a troubled mind. UNCERTAIN."

TELL your friend the truth, my dear. That is always a wise course when in doubt.

Tell him how very highly you value his friendship—that is, if you do—but that you are not in love with anyone. Then, if he wishes to continue the companionship on the basis of a good friendship, I do not see why you should not consent with an easy conscience.

Do not promise, however, to give him all of your time. Through him you may meet some one you do care for deeply. Or it is possible that you may surprise yourself by falling in love later on with this good friend—such things happen. Good luck!

Don't Be Selfish!

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen years old. While going to school, I became acquainted with a boy one year my junior and we became very good friends.

I have known him now for three years and have gone with him times I like him better than any boy I have met, but my mother doesn't like him. I don't see why, because he has always been very nice to me and has no bad habits.

He is very jealous. My friends know this and told him I was going out with other boys. He believed it, although I have never gone out with anyone else since I met him. He is now going with a girl who is considered fast, and lately he has acted strange toward me.

Will you please give me your advice? I will be very grateful to you and do just what you say.

WAITING.

IF I were you I would not criticise another girl. You may be doing her a great injustice.

At eighteen, a girl is very foolish if she does not go out with all her friends rather than limit her companionship to one boy. So why not be generous in this matter? Share the friendship. Treat him and the other girl with friendly good nature when you meet.

I believe you will find that he will admire your good sportsmanship, and consider you vastly more interesting than if you refused all invitations but his own and allowed yourself to become jealous of his other friends.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND.

"I AM the only woman he ever REALLY loved! The only woman who understands him!"

That is what at least three attractive young women solemnly and emphatically declared, when a popular New York novelist got his picture in the newspapers, through the suicide of a fourth pretty young woman.

* * *

THAT is the easiest thing in the world for any woman to believe, if a man will only let her! All a man has to do in order to be a complete success as a lover, is to start a woman's imagination working, and then refrain from doing anything to interrupt it.

* * *

Nearly every normal girl can recall at least four or five men, to whom lives she fondly believes she was the "one and only real love." Believing the things she WANTS to believe about a man is one of woman's greatest specialties. Kidding herself is her favorite pastime!

* * *

The fine art of making women love you, as every skilled amorist knows, consists in concentrating the eyes, heart and attention on one woman—at a TIME. In making her believe that she is the only woman in your life!

* * *

That is positively all it takes to be a great lover! And it's SO easy! But, alas, so few men will take the time or the trouble to specialize in love, these days; they all want to be general practitioners.

* * *

A one-woman man is almost as hard to find as a dinosaur or a corset, or an honest buckwheat cake, and even a one-woman-at-a-time man is rarer than real Chippendale.

* * *

But the super-lover, today, yesterday and forever is the one who knows how to concentrate his whole mind and soul on the particular woman he happens to be looking at, talking to or kissing. No matter how many changes of heart he may have, the woman of the moment is "the only woman in this world" for him!

* * *

No woman relishes the thought that she is only one of a crowd in a man's affections. That his heart is like an excursion train, in which there is always room for one more. She can forgive a man for ceasing to love her, if he will only leave her VANITY intact.

Next to the knowledge that she is loved, the most thrilling feeling a woman can have is the conviction that she HAS BEEN loved, thoroughly and completely.

FAMOUS LOVERS

By COZETTE DOUGLASS.

Henry II of England and Rosamund Clifford.

EVEN after seven hundred years the story of "Fair Rosamund" and Henry II of England has the power to stir the coldest heart. It is like hunting through an attic on a dull, dreary day and suddenly finding a package of letters, faded and tied with blue ribbons, but sending out a fragrance and breathing anew a love which flamed years and years before.

Although much of the story comes to us through the medium of legend, yet there is sufficient of authenticity in it to include it among as one of the great romances.

Rosamond was the daughter of Walter de Clifford, a son of Richard Fitz Ponce, who is the ancestor of the great Clifford family.

The story goes that about the time Henry was knighted by his uncle, the King of Scotland, he met Rosamond, who was about the same age as himself. They promptly fell head over heels in love with each other and Henry entered into a secret marriage contract with Rosamond. What crimes are sometimes committed in the name of love. Rosamond fondly believed herself to be the lawful wife of Henry and his word to her was law.

Not long after his "marriage," he went to France and while there met the unscrupulous Queen Eleanora. On his return to England, he returned to Rosamond, and two years later a son was born to them.

Again Henry went to France, and this time, for reasons of state, or ambition, perhaps, Henry fell in with the queen's plan to divorce her pious husband, Louis, and marry him.

We are told that poor Rosamond was kept in total ignorance of all this, and still fondly believed Henry to be her very own.

Henry, however, had great difficulty in keeping his secret, as Queen Eleanora, who was 12 years older than himself, was extremely jealous, and watched his every move. One day while Henry was walking in the garden, the queen decided to find out the cause of his lonesome walks, and attached a silken cord to him and then followed the cord, which unwound as he walked, until she came to the bower in which the fair Rosamond lived. What happened betwen the two women will never be known. However, history tells us that Henry chose ambition rather than love and sacrificed Rosamond on its flaming altar. We do know that she entere da nunnery and spent the balance of her life there.

Through a strange coincidence, Eleanor was destined to suffer the same fate, for in later years Henry tired of her, and caused her to remain a prisoner for 18 years, when she, too, entered a convent and remained there until death.

Rosamond died about the year 1191 and was buried in the Godstow nunnery. An elaborate tomb was erected to her memory in he chapel choir which was directly before the altar. A Bishop of London, while visiting the nunnery became offended at her tomb being so placed, and caused its removal to an obscure place. Centuries after, during the Reformation, when the chapel was destroyed, the story is told that the nuns, whose hearts still throbbed with pity for the lovely Rosamond, gathered her bones in a silken kerchief and removed them to a corner of the garden in the convent walls.

THREE-MINUTE TRIPS

By TEMPLE MANNING

AT least one night of a tourist's stay in Paris is devoted to the night life of the gay French capital. It is called a "Tour de Nuit." Usually it begins with dinner to a Montmartre restaurant. One of the hundreds scattered over the hillside where Paris night life centers. Visits are then paid to various amusement places, shows and so on, such as "L'Enfer," where a flaming sign announces its name to the passers-by. Here one may see beautiful girls cast into veritable tongues of flame. Next door is Le Ciel, where one may learn the Frenchman's conception of the ethereal region. Coming back to Earth," stops are made at the Cabaret of Ghosts where, seated on coffins in an eerie atmosphere, refreshments are taken.

At midnight the real night life is in full swing. Jazz bands blare from concert halls along the Boulevard Clichy and tantalize through the Place Blanche to discharge their carloads of bejeweled women and their escorts.

Then the descent of the hill to Montmartre begins. Every block holds cabarets fitting each hour, until the foot of the hill is reached, when one hails a cab and driver across Paris to Les Halles (the market). For blocks one walks through great buildings resembling aviation hangars, where the produce of Paris is on sale. Rugged, red-faced French women stand behind pyramids of fresh fruit and vegetables, while in adjoining halls, fish of every kind is sold.

"For the third year in succession Texas dominates the early crop outlook with the prospect of more than an average yield on an average constituting two-fifths of the entire cotton area," says the National Bank of Commerce in New York in the September issue of Commerce Monthly.

"In the central belt a fair outlook in the bottom lands, together with the return to cotton of the area flooded in 1927 somewhat more than offsets the threat of poor stand and poor condition of the hill country. For the East good prospects in the piedmont are offset by the very poor showing of the Coastal Plain.

"The crux of the problem again lies in the probable extent of weevil damage. It is probable that since the start of this year's crop precludes the realization of the very highest of yields. Yet very good crops have been made under similar conditions in the past.

"Much of the Central Belt has not had the benefit of dry weather in July and stands remain irregular and spotted with at least a fair possibility of considerable damage. Except in Louisiana, condition on the Coastal Plain is much below that from the relatively low level of last year in all of which localities except that the worst weevil infestation and the poorest stands occur in the less important areas of production. In those sections where damage is not ordinarily to be expected. A million and a half acres of cotton for the season are lack in cotton in those three states and show a very fine stand on few acres.

"Except for North Carolina, the Atlantic and Gulf States in general had the worst of the weather. The outlook in the Piedmont area of those states is better than good, inasmuch as they escaped a lot of the spring rains. Much of the plain is in very poor shape and showery weather throughout July and heavy rains in August increase the liability of serious damage.

"To be added to the result of this year's harvest there is a somewhat more than normal stock in marketing channels and mill warehouses despite a sharp reduction during the year. It seems to be generally agreed that the world carryover of American cotton will remain approximately five million bales. With an increase of 600,000 bales in the visible supply and in mill stock growths, the stock position is still comfortable except in case of the possibility of some excess of consumption over production."

MACHINE TOOL SALES MAINTAIN GOOD LEVELS

New York, Aug. 29—Inquiries for machinery are in good volume for this time of the year and prospects for fall business are more favorable than a year ago, according to American Machinist. Reports from nearly all sections of the country indicate that sales of machine tools in the first eight months of this year were larger than in any similar period since 1921. With the exception of the railroads the buying is general. A feature in the situation has been the demand for apparatus from the reconstructed South.

Automotive prospects in the Detroit district are exceptionally favorable compared with August in previous years. Ford is building up production rapidly and operations at new factory is under way for the Hupp Motor Co. An important factor in the market business has been the advance inquiries on machine tool equipment. Employment in New England is reported as normally with no surplus of skilled labor. Steel mills in Pennsylvania are making some gains in operations.

ESTABLISH VALUATION ON REPRODUCTION COST

As a result of recent decisions handed down by the United States Supreme Court, reproduction valuations of public utilities properties have largely replaced original cost valuations in the matter of establishing a basis for rate structures, according to Stone & Webster and Blodget, Inc., investment bankers who have just completed a study of two of their dedicated handed down by the court.

For the twenty year period previous to January 1, 1916, the yearly average cost factor for light and power properties was 4.6 per cent of 1914 figures, according to the survey. Subject to pronounced annual fluctuations, the average cost factor for the war period 1916-1920, inclusive, as well as for the post-war period 1921-1927, inclusive, was approximately 180 per cent of 1914.

AMERICAN ICE PROFITS FOR JULY SET RECORD

July earnings of American Ice Co. were the largest in the company's history, amounting, before Federal taxes and depreciation, to $1,112,934. This compares with $955,724 in July last year.

Says President Charles C. Small: "In New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Newark, Portland and Washington, as well as in adjacent territory, the company's 2,500 trucks broke all July records. Its business at the Atlantic shore resorts was noticeably large, indicating great activity in those places."

FIRST MAINE INVESTMENT COMPANY

The Investment Trust has spread to Maine where the First Maine Investment Company has been organized by a number of prominent men. It has a paid-in capital consisting of 16,000 shares of Class A stock of $10 par value, and 15,000 shares of Class B stock of no par. This furnishes a local medium through which Maine people may secure diversification of high-grade securities handled by a trained management.

Two Boston men appear on the boards of directors, J. H. Goddard and Sherman Thomas, both of the investment firm of J. H. Goddard & Co., 80 Federal st. The other directors are Thomas S. Brady of Augusta, Alden S. Hichborn of Augusta, Blaine S. Viles of Augusta, Fred N. Boone of Gardiner, John E. Wilson of Augusta and Francis T. Hunter of New Gloucester, N. Y.

A market for the sale of the shares is provided in a provision of the by-laws under which the investor may resell his shares to the company at the net liquidating value less 1 per cent. Dividends at the rate of 6 per cent are being paid on the class A shares. After payment of 7½ cents a share on the class B shares the class A shares participate equally in any further disbursements up to 6 per cent on both classes. Twenty per cent of any remaining surplus must be placed in a reserve account until such reserve equals 20 per cent of the outstanding stock.

The company may not invest more than ½ of 1 per cent of the capital in the securities of any one private corporation, more than 10 per cent in any one country except the United States and Canada, nor more than half of this percentage in fiduciary corporations; more than 40 per cent in railroad securities; more than 40 per cent in light and power securities, or more than 10 per cent in the securities of any other class of industry.

MIMIC WAR IN VERMONT SOON

St. Albans, Vt., Aug. 29—St. Albans will be the center of a military engagement on September 12 and 13 when the 13th Reinforced Infantry Brigade of the regular army launches an attack on the "enemy" forces who will have just "captured" the city.

Whether the attacking forces are strong enough to drive the invaders rests on the umpires and staff officers of the regular military establishment.

Members of the St. Alban's Post, American Legion, are making plans for the annual ball to be given in attendance to the enlisted men of the brigade here on the night of September 13.

ACTIVITY CONTINUES IN HARDWARE TRADE

New York, Aug. 29—The activity that has characterized the hardware trade during the past several weeks is still evident, according to reports from important jobbing centers. Hardware Age will say tomorrow in its weekly market summary. The approach of the fall season is beginning to quicken the sale of general lines, although the present general disposition is toward small but frequent orders. The total volume averages well, however.

Prices again show a few downward revisions but they are in the main steady and firm. Collections are reported fair and improvement is noted in some sections. Marketing of crops will, it is expected, have a good effect upon collections and consumer buying in general.

NEW PLAN FOR RACING PURSES AT TOPSFIELD

The horse racing at the Topsfield Fair on September 12 to 15 will be on the added money plan, a new system now in vogue in many parts of the country. Its adoption at Topsfield will be the first time this new innovation has been tried in the State, at least at an agricultural fair.

Under the plan all money paid in as entry fees will be added to the purse of the event for which the fee was paid, thus making the money value of each event considerably more. All racing will be under the rules and regulations of the National Trotting Association.

Although the date for closing the entries is not till September 3, enough have already been received to insure the complete success of the meet.

The card will include trotting, pacing and running races with two special events for amateur drivers only. The classes are open schooled and will, bring together some close competition.

Considerable interest has been added to the horse show feature of the fair. This year for the first time exhibiting and judging will be done both day and night.

Major C. A. Benton of New York, famed the country over as one of the best judges of thoroughbreds and an expert on the pure bred Morgan strain, will act as one of the judges of the show.

With 60 or more thoroughbred Morgans on exhibition, including at least 12 from the United States Morgan horse farm at Middlebury, Vt., the horse show should prove a great attraction.

FROTHINGHAM LEFT $25,000 TO CHARITIES

Charitable bequests amounting to $25,000 are contained in the will of the late Congressman Louis A. Frothingham. The will, filed in probate court at Taunton, names the widow and Herbert Parker of Lancaster as executors. The will was executed on November 5, 1924.

Harvard College is given $10,000; the Lucy Dent Robbins Hospital, Boston; the Free Home for Women, a Massachusetts corporation, and the Boys' Club of Boston, $5000 each.

The same sum is given to a sister-in-law of the testator, Anna C. Frothingham, of Boston.

The brother and sisters of Mr. Frothingham are given $140,000 between them equally. The petition states that the heirs at law are the said brother and sisters, Ellen L. Ernst of Jamaica Plain and Anne F. Cobb of Milton, and one brother, Langdon Frothingham, of Boston.

The widow is bequeathed the household furniture and personal effects, and given the rest and residue of the estate after the charitable bequests enumerated above are paid.

HUB MAN, 76, REGISTERS TO CAST HIS FIRST VOTE

John A. Snow

At the age of 76, John A. Snow, blacksmith, of 66 West Broadway, South Boston, is going to cast his first vote. He is interested in a political campaign for the first time in his life, so he has registered at the Ward 12 headquarters, and will fill out his ballot and cast the primaries next month. There was a long line at the booth, but he was permitted, because of his age, to be first.

He was cheered as he held up his hand to be registered.

"I never before thought it worth while to get registered," he declared, later.

The septuagenarian's decision followed a visit to his home by School Committeeman Edward M. Sullivan, candidate for Congress from the 11th district.

Outside of business hours, the aged man is interested in art, and does some painting himself. His specialty is marine pictures.

He is spry and active for his years.

NEW INSURANCE FOR COMMERCIAL AUTOS

All operators of motor vehicles for strictly commercial purposes can now insure against the actual loss or conduct of business sustained by reason of theft of their motor vehicles or their damage by fire. This new form of protection, known as automobile use occupancy insurance, is being offered by the National Liberty Insurance Co. of New York.

The policy has been developed especially for truck and bus fleet operators, whose temporary suspension of business might mean financial embarrassment or disaster regardless of equipment loss. Under the new policy holders may be compensated not losses due to business interruption as well as additional expense incurred in continuing the business until equipment can be placed.

JULES VERNE'S STORY WILL BE FILMED

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 29—No film is very dead in the movies until it has been buried for at least two years. Take the case of "The Mysterious Island." Jules Verne's story. For six months Ernie Williamson talked the Bahama Islands for location but apparently neither his production nor his talk was sufficiently relaxing for Mr. G. M. finally decided not to produce "The Mysterious Island."

That was a year ago. Now M-G-M. has resurrected "The Mysterious Island" without the Bahamas and without Ernie Williamson. Lucien Hubbard has been called in to direct and James Murray has been nominated as leading man. Murray's selection is interesting. For weeks he has been rumored as having left M. G. M. Apparently, like Mark Twain's demise, it was only gossip.

LIONEL BARRYMORE is all that is left of the old "Mysterious Island" cast. He again plays a role. Jacqueline Gadsden and Montagu Love are also in the cast and at the moment it looks as if the production will be under way almost any day.

PROPHECIES uttered in good faith by some of our motion picture critics give Joe Brown the crown of stardom within the next year. Brown, some of the critics say, is different. Some way I have missed seeing his pictures as I cannot say whether or not I agree with my colleagues.

I do know that Brown on the strength of some of his recent films has been engaged by John Stahl to play opposite Belle Bennett in "Queen of Burlesque." Al Ray, the director, has issued a call to camera for tomorrow morning.

THE sound complications of Gloria Swanson's picture, "Queen Tillie," sound stupendous. Maybe that is not the word I should use, but from what I have heard of that stage being built and that building being constructed and this machine being moved and that one tested, it sounds as if talkies are the most complicated things in the world.

P. A. O. has brought a whole carload of apparatus to film "Tillie," also the eight tickers of gold coins which were made when she was in New York have been brought to Hollywood. Gloria's birthday is next May is not what it was in the days before dialogue was a part of the movies.

Maude George, Tully Marshall and Albert Conti have been added to the cast and Von Stroheim every day is getting nearer and nearer the megaphone stage.

HARRY COHEN has gone to Europe but Columbia goes on. Why note? Just brother, Jack is here. And although Jack doesn't talk as much as Harry he accomplishes fully as much. Jack has signed Marcelina Day to play the lead in "Spitfires," a Christy Cabanne picture.

Not only has Marcelina put her valuable signature on a contract but Fritzi Brunette has a part. You remember Fritzi Brunette. Back in the days before sound was thought of and film was pronounced "Filum" Fritzi was quite a gal. She has come back after several years absence from the screen.

SWEDEN is calling Greta Garbo. She longs to pay a return visit to her home and the home folk and look over the situation. No date has arranged with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as soon as she has enough pictures made, to take a trip to Europe. Maurits Stiller, who discovered Greta Garbo and who is responsible for the success of her early features, is still in Sweden.

It is said that Stiller would give much to see Garbo under his direction again. The rumors of Miss Garbo's engagement to John Gilbert seem to have died a natural death. One sees them together but there is no longer any talk of marriage.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN will officially open Harry Crocker's Motion Picture Museum next Friday night. The ceremony will be brief as Harry is determined to have the opening simple and without the usual fuss and feathery of dedications. Harry has some of the most interesting relics of the motion picture industry in his collection.

All of the stars and producers have been unusually generous in wishing to promote this institution which will, of course, be helpful to pictures and to Hollywood.

The Motion Picture Museum is located at Sunset Boulevard near Gower, almost directly across from the Warner Brothers studios. The invitations to this professional preview read from 3 to 12.

A CHARTERED aeroplane sent to Catalina to bring Herbert Hoover back to the United States by radio on Monday morning, did Richard Barthelmess a good service. Dick, weekending at Catalina on his yacht, sprained his ankle so badly as first it was thought he had fractured it.

He was rushed aboard the aeroplane and brought to San Pedro where a physician pronounced the ankle badly strained and in need of a stout bandage. Having just recovered from a sprained ankle it is remarkable what with Dick for it's one of the most painful, nonserious accidents on record.

Mr. Motorist's Money

How Long May the Insurance Companies Hold the $6,000,000 Against Which Personal Injury Claims Were Made—but NOT Allowed—in 1927?

Insurance Commissioner Monk will announce on Saturday the 1929 rates at which the Massachusetts motorist MUST buy his compulsory automobile insurance. If there are citizens who do not like them they will have 20 days within which to appeal to the Supreme Court.

And that, after two weeks of loose talk about fraudulent claims, dishonest lawyers and corrupt surgeons, is all the progress that has been made in the effort to check advances in insurance costs in some cases running almost as high as 100 per cent.

We have learned something, however.

We have found out that when the companies place their losses for the year 1927 at $11,500,000, the figure comprises not only actual payments but OUTSTANDING CLAIMS.

And that is only one of the mysteries which must be made clear before the automobile owner is conciliated. The year under consideration is 1927. Eight months after the close of that year the insurance companies are still holding $6,000,000 against which claims are outstanding which may never be paid.

How much has been ADDED to this reserve fund in the eight months of 1928? How much MORE is likely to be added next year? And how long will the insurance companies want to hold onto it all?

We MAY have learned something, too, from the statement of a Springfield insurance man, as reported by the Daily Republican of that city. According to the Republican, the gentleman is a member of one of Springfield's "leading insurance agencies." HE characterizes as "misleading" the statement of Mr. Monk that the proposed drastic increases in rates are due to "fraudulent claims."

"This talk of fraudulent liability claims is mostly baloney. Sporadic cases have occurred, but the spurious claims are rarely, if ever, paid, because the claimants have to go to the expense and risk of court action. But when such claims are made the companies set aside as liability disproportionately large sums which they don't anticipate having to pay, and which in most cases they never do.

"This results in an enormous swelling of the liability fund, which is kept by the companies FOR INVESTMENT, but which also figures in their demands for higher [illegible] ratio of claims to losses actually paid averages only about 50 per cent.

"One casualty company operating in the state, which has joined in the request for higher rates, operating on an original capitalization of $2,000,000 and during the past seven years paid a total dividend of $6,720,000, including a stock dividend of $2,000,000. This company in 1927 showed a net surplus of $7,311,492, a padded reserve fund termed a 'special contingent reserve' of $1,000,000, and in addition paid a dividend of 100 per cent on a capitalization of $4,000,000. Furthermore, watered stock, represented by a stock dividend in 1922 of $2,000,000, is used by the company to further its demand for higher rates. This company, last year had a ratio of losses paid to premiums collected of only 57.2 per cent."

Magazines and house organs of the insurance companies, according to this Springfield authority, during the past year have repeatedly criticized and ridiculed the Massachusetts compulsory act in editorials, cartoons and special stories.

The motive back of the drive? Still quoting this leading insurance man, "fear on the part of the companies of the possible creation of a state-operated motor vehicle insurance association and anything that smacks of compulsion in the matter of liability insurance."

Lieutenant-Governor Allen, faced with first a primary contest and then, if successful, the judgment of Election Day, is urging the Insurance Commissioner to go along for another year on the present rates.

Mr. Monk's OWN judgment tells him to "boost."

That means, in one Greater Boston district, an advance on small cars from $29 to $53, on cars of medium size from $37 to $53, and on large cars from $45 to $70.

If these rates stand, the next meeting of the Massachusetts Legislature is likely to be known as the "compulsory insurance session."

PICTURES, Better Than WORDS, Make Us Realize It

KANSAS CITY, MO., IN 1853

KANSAS CITY TODAY FROM AN AIRPLANE

These two pictures are printed to emphasize the amazing growth of this gigantic country and its cities.

They are published also to emphasize, again, the fact that THE PIONEER IS THE GREAT EDUCATOR.

One picture can do more to impress the mind in a second than ten thousand words can do in a month.

The reason is simple. Our ancestors, human, semi-human, and NOT human, on this earth, for thousands of centuries, before language was developed, learned everything through the eye. Sharp sounds of danger, a low hissing, a rustling of

MISERY NOT ALWAYS REVOLUTIONARY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

NO notion is more commonly held, and none is more fallacious than this: "The more wretched, miserable and oppressed the people are, the readier they are for revolution."

It is one of those things that we go on believing just because it looks self-evident, as the earth seems flat.

But it is not the oppressed workers who revolt, it is the thinkers.

It was not the laboring class that made the French Revolution; it was the encyclopedists and their disciples.

It was not the moujiks of Russia that caused the downfall of Czarism; it was the intellectuals. The Russian mob has always kissed the feet of its tyrants, and is kissing the feet of Trotsky the Obsessed as obsequiously as it kissed the feet of Ivan the Terrible or Catherine the Obscene.

The negroes of America did not revolt, it was the Northern Abolitionists—Garrison, Phillips, Stowe and the like—that brought on the war.

The docile German horde never threw off the yoke of the Hohenzollerns—France, England and America knocked it off.

Spain is at the tail end of social progress because misery and ignorance are endemic there.

You find workers most troublesome where they are best paid and have most comfort.

If a man will eat dirt and live in squalor it shows he has not spunk enough to revolt.

The American colonists that revolted from England were not slaves, peasants or moujiks; they were well fed and hard headed, also hard fisted.

Misery does not cause social advancement, it impedes it.

The more well-being, intelligent, and comfortable conditions there are among the masses, the more ambitious they are, the harder it is to make them submit to tyranny, and the more dangerous they are.

The "dangerous" man is the Thinker, not the Sufferer.

Those whom tyrants have to fear are
Men who their duties know, and knowing dare maintain.
Prevent the long aimed blow,
And crush the tyrant while they rend the chain.'
"Men, high-minded men,

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

By ELSIE ROB[illegible]
I DO not know anything about God.

I do not even know whether there is a God to hear me when I pray. But I know this—

That often when I am tired and discouraged and hard pressed I need to pray. And I have found by experience that there is Power enough in my own self to help me—if I honestly want to be helped.

Perhaps that Power in me is really God. Perhaps it is some mysterious reserve fund of human energy. I do not know. And I've stopped asking. But I pray—constantly. I pray to the wisdom and truth and beauty in me which I do know—I pray to my Better Self. And my prayers are answered.

Today I am giving you one of my prayers. It may not help you in the least. But if it does, I'm glad.

TO MY OWN SELF I CRY, THAT I, MYSELF, MAY COME TO MY OWN AID.

Help me to be true to that which I do know
Of beauty, wisdom, strength and righteousness.
Help me cast off the laziness and fear,
The spite, conceit, stupidity and greed
Which blind my eyes and trap my foolish feet.
Force me to see myself just as I am
Until I'm shamed and sickened by the sight—
Then set new visions flaming in my soul!
New clean rebellions pounding in my brain,
Until, through pain and fury I shall slowly come
To be the woman I have longed to be.
The way is dark, but I at least can be True to that Inner Self which I do know.
Loyal to that beauty I do understand,
And strong to keep the faith with my own heart.
That is my prayer as to my Self I pray—
HELP ME TO BE AS TALL AS MY OWN SELF.

Seeing America First

BY O. O. McINTYRE

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 29—Approaching Albuquerque, one comes upon the picturesque ruins of prehistoric civilization. There are stretches of foundations and broken walls of communal buildings—the first of American apartment houses. It is one of the most colorful cities in the union.

One sees the squat adobe houses with their windows and doors painted the green and pink of poisonous wall paper. Indians in their native wagon seated by the side of their shawled and complacent squaws. herds of goats, cactus-eating burros, papoose in shoulder bags, and circling buzzards.

And the train thunders into the spreading station of Albuquerque with its terraced plots of brightly tinted flowers, modern flappers, camera slung tourists in plus fours, Indian rug, pottery and bow and arrow sellers—all like a sudden mirage in the desert.

The altitude is 4900 feet and the air is dry and heady like tangy wine. Meeting every train are tuberculosis convalescents, bright-eyed with the hope of seeing someone from home to relieve the monotony of their isolation. The city's population is near 40,000.

A few miles from town are Indian pueblos—cliff dwellers, snake dancers and sun worshippers living precisely as they did years before the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock. There is an ineffable sadness about their shy yet engaging hospitality toward their conquerors.

Attracted by a beautifully colored clay vase, I inquired of the bronzed salesman his price. There was the despair of utter resignation in his "Pay what you like. It no matter, Little Indian children with full skirts and plaited hair, too, sit about in dull apathy.

In their glorious days, Albuquerque was the hub of the Indian country. They fashioned towns and cities with stone houses four stories high, irrigated fields and built ditches with the precision of skilled engineers. Then the white man came. And today they are almost aliens in their own land.

GALLUP, N. M., is one of the high points along the old Santa Fe trail. The air is so light that during an influenza epidemic several years ago the town was almost decimated. It has often been seen in moving pictures as the locale for those wild western frontier dramas. Roaming wild dogs come down from the hills for scraps from the diners and sniff disdainfully at my poor little frightened city-bred pooch. He never looked such a size before.

THE only faux pas so far on the trip was in noticing the sign: "Dangerous to lean out of the window," after I had done my leaning.

ARIZONA'S distant backgrounds of beauty unroll beyond Gallup. Puffs of white clouds laze through skies of lazulite. And there are endless miles of dry river beds. Scattered across the desert waste are primitive houses whose open doors and windows reveal bright walls of coral, lemon yellow and orange. Sandy cliffs rise to majestic grandeur and fall away to endless vistas of sage brush and alkali dust. All of which sounds as though it might have been taken from a descriptive railroad folder. And maybe it was.

FLAGSTAFF is a western town still running true to scenario and wild west story writing form. It has its wide main street facing the railroad depot with its Commercial Hotel, pool hall, bank. Bright Angel short order restaurant, curbstone hitching racks, spurs, chaps, neck bandanas, legs curved to the saddle and exposed six-shooters.

TONIGHT we cross the desert with its mysterious silence and creeping shadows. And tomorrow morning we will be among the blooming flowers and snow-capped peaks of southern California.

What, no climate!

leaves or branches, warned them through the ear. But the brain was unused to language.

HOUSTON ON THE CREEK, IN 1825

HOUSTON, THE GREAT CITY OF SKYSCRAPERS, TODAY

The moment you look at these two pictures, showing Kansas City, Missouri, and Houston, Texas, with a line separating the city of years ago from the city of today, you realize how marvelously American cities have grown.

No need to give facts or figures. You see the Kansas City of 1853, and the Houston of 1825. And on the right of each picture you see the modern city.

The transformation is as clear to you as though you had read ten volumes about Houston and Kansas City.

You know that the shores of the Missouri at Kansas City have changed from grassy banks or mud banks to docks and wharves. You know that railroad lines enter Houston and Kansas City from endless directions. You know that where there were farms in Kansas City, there are now gigantic packing houses, factories and office buildings.

You know that Houston is a city no longer of quiet, little houses and churches, but of gigantic skyscrapers.

In one lifetime the changes shown in these pictures have occurred. And in one glance your eyes see it all.

What will happen in the next lifetime, before this century ends?

Jesse H. Jones, described as the citizen dinosaur of Houston, has done much to promote that city as the late Colonel Nelson had much to do with the development of Kansas City. In the old days he printed his little paper, and occasionally climbed up in his shirt sleeves from his basement shop on Delaware avenue to interview the son of some "Eastern Millionaire," the millionaire part usually imaginary.

And credit is due to old Colonel Coates, with his good hotel on the West Side, and the cyclone cellar below to which he invited his guests when a yellow funnel-shaped cloud came down the Missouri.
